RAIL PENSION LAW IS RULED INVALID BY CAPITAL COURT

Act Declared Unconstitutional Because of Its Application to Those Not Engaged in Interstate Commerce.

DECISION BRINGS STOCK ADVANCES

Carriers Claim Inability To Pay Their Share in Program To Safeguard Old Age of Employees.

Another bit of New Deal legislation, the measure which established a pension system for railroad employees, was declared unconstitutional today in the District of Columbia supreme court.

Although an appeal by the government and an eventual test in the supreme court was regarded as certain, the decision stimulated a sluggish stock market. Rail shares were in the van of brisk advance, jumping from $1 to $5.

The act is unconstitutional because it extends its provisions to persons not engaged in interstate commerce," declared Justice Alfred C. Wharto in his opinion.

The American Railway Association in its attack upon the law asserted it affected many employees who were engaged only in intrastate commerce and that it violated the fifth amendment by taking property without due process of law.

Similar to Farm Bill.

Passed in the closing days of congress, the pension bill had much the same legislative history as the Frazier-Lemke farm moratorium measure. Administration leaders had neither hill upon their program but a coalition of railroads, Senator Long, democrat, Louisiana, and Senator Dell, democrat, Washington, put both measures through.

The Frazier-Lemke bill since has been held unconstitutional by a federal court in Maryland.

President Roosevelt in signing the measure said it was "loosely worded" and would require a supplement next session. Justice Wharto referred to it as "the most unconvincing argument I have heard."

The natural reluctance which a judge feels when compelled to hold an act of congress unconstitutional, he said, "is in this case somewhat tempered by the fact that the act seems to be satisfactory even to some who favor it in principle and some who oppose it."

Provisions.

The pension act, which bore the name of Representative Crosser, democrat, Ohio, provided for retirement with pay of railway employees who had reached the age of 65 or who had served for 30 years. Both employees and employers were required to contribute to a fund for the pensions.

JUDGE ROSCOE LUKE.

GROOVER'S WIDOW ON WITNESS STAND IN TRIAL OF LUKE

State Seeks Motive in Business Life of Jurist for Slaying of Former Associate.

By BEN F. MYER,
Associated Press Staff Correspondent.

THOMASVILLE, Ga., Oct. 24.—(AP)—The grey-haired widow of Oscar Groover today testified that he and Judge Roscoe Luke, charged with slaying Groover, had been friends from childhood, but Luke had not killed his wife because her husband was killed.

Groover, 67, was shot to death with a sawed-off shotgun while sitting in an automobile here and Luke, former member of the Georgia court of appeals and now city judge of Thomasville, said the shooting was accidental.

F.D.R. IS SILENT ON CAL. POLITICS

Confusion Exists Over Administration's Views On Sinclair Candidacy.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—(P)—President Roosevelt answered with nothing but a big smile today all questions about the California gubernatorial situation. In other democratic quarters, however, it was indicated the administration now is looking somewhat askance toward the campaign of Captain Sinclair, the demagogic nominee.

Altogether the situation appeared confused because of a growing division of sentiment among democrats here toward the former socialist's candidacy. Meanwhile, it was officially emphasized again that the White House is maintaining a "hands-off" policy.

Talk around democratic headquarters indicated many of the party leaders are taking the position that Sinclair has gone too far afield in advocating his "end poverty in California" program, particularly in view

California Town Ready To Entertain Vets in '75

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 24.—(P)—Hand cards and placards seeking the 1975 convention of the American Legion for Mill Valley, Calif., were distributed here today in the Olympic theater, where business sessions are being held.

"Mill Valley, Calif., will be ready for the American Legion in 1975," read the cards. "Ambulances, crutches, wheel chairs, canes and rubber cushions will be furnished to those in need."

"It's hearty welcome for the hardy veterans awaiting you."

"Remember the date—remember the place."

"Mill Valley—1975."

of the platform adopted by the state convention.

From another source came word that some administration chieftains feel Sinclair defeated Frank F. Merriam, the republican nominee, his victory might lead to one of two things.

First, it was said, it might cause a spread of the Sinclair idea to the other states and thereby affect the administration's national legislative program by encouraging demands for more radical measures.

Second, the word was that his victory under the democratic label might impede what appears to be the conservative trend of the government and thus affect chances of the party in the 1936 elections.

On the other hand, it was noted that a republican victory in California might tend to enhance that party's chances in the next presidential elections by starting a reaction.

The national democratic organization has been put in a tight spot by Sinclair's campaign is confined in political circles.

SINCLAIR CHARGES BUYING OF STRAW VOTES BY FOES

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 24.—(P)—Upton Sinclair, democratic nominee for governor, charged today his foes were buying ballots in a large-scale straw vote, the first returns of which showed Acting Governor Frank F. Merriam was leading.

The former socialist made his accusations first when a huge crowd booted him as he referred last night to unofficial reports of the straw voting. He asserted his enemies were paying 25 cents each for all the ballots they could get.

YAGOL IS NO 'INCITER', EMORY PAPER HOLDS

An editorial venturing the belief of the student body of Emory University in the innocence of Nathan Yagol, graduate chemistry student, accused of "inciting to insurrection" and pointing to his fine record as a student, is being published in the current issue of the Wheel, official student publication at Emory.

The editorial was written by James M. Tolbert, Wheel co-editor. It follows:

"NATHAN YAGOL.
This editorial concerns itself with the character of Nathan Yagol, a brilliant Emory graduate student of chemistry, physical science and mathematics, now in the DeKalb county jail pending trial for 'insurrection,' or 'inciting to riot,' or some thing."

"Less than two years ago Yagol's father was murdered by robbers who entered his store in the city of Atlanta. The great majority of the citizens of the town and citizenry were perhaps shocked but the shock was negligible compared with the intense grief and hurt that his bereavement on Nathan's part. He became a confirmed pacifist and does not hesitate to go directly to the police if he sees any trouble. It is difficult to find anyone who would go farther out of his way to avert armed conflict than the young Yagol. He is a man charged with a capital crime. The murderer of his father, by the way, is still at large."

The Emory student body knows Yagol as an independent and sincere thinker, a man of high intellect. An insurgent? No! A revolutionist? No! A communist? Not at all! There is not a man in the state of Georgia more opposed to the use of force. Yet he is a member of the Communist Party of America—a career crowned last spring by his election to Phi Beta Kappa—has a student of Emory who has been called a communist to the effect that he would resort to violence to obtain any end. If he were of the insurrectionists like those who are an outlet for the grievances of Emory University, it is a Christian institution and operates on Christian principles. That Yagol is not an insurrectionist is evidenced by the fact that he is surrounded by the large number of Emory students attending the hearings involving him. He is a courageous man who has stood up for him, "a good old boy." Yet there are those who would attempt to make the public believe he is not. Yagol is a menace who needs to be quiet. It is not a secret."

We grant that Yagol was guilty of an indecent and the infliction of a terrible meeting with a person in a position where such association is generally frowned upon—but the fact remains that there is nothing in his record to indicate he is a communist man. Imagine, if you can, a confirmed and sincere pacifist slaving away at the study of Emory University, the best in the country, about which he knows more than almost anyone in Georgia. In an earnest effort to expose the secret of his remarkable chemical phenomenon, and a few hours later finding himself in jail on a charge of inciting to riot. No! Yagol is at worst guilty of an indiscretion, but not of any capital offense; he is no menace to our country. That is the opinion of the Emory student body, and we believe, to a man, in his innocence."

Doumert's Cabinet Said Near Collapse

PARIS, Oct. 24.—(P)—The collapse of the truce cabinet of Premier Gaston Doumert became increasingly probable today with a second-party rebellion against constitutionalism.

The radical socialist party in the chamber, with a number of senators present, voted unanimously against the premier's determination to deprive the senate of the right to dissolve the chamber and give it to the premier or the president or both.

ED WYNN NAMED IN SUIT FOR $115,000 BY UNCLE AND AUNT

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—(P)—So-o-o-o-o they are suing Ed Wynn for $115,000.

"They" are the Samuel Greenbergs, Mr. and Mrs. Mrs. Greenberg is asking $100,000. She contends that Wynn engaged her as sort of a bodyguard and forced her from his wife, Mrs. Hilda Keenan Wynn.

As set forth in papers filed yesterday by Mrs. Greenberg's counsel, she served as a companion for Mrs. Wynn because Wynn told her "his career as a comedian was in jeopardy" because of alleged sexual outbursts against him.

Wynn, in his answer, denies any such agreement as Mrs. Greenberg charges. Even if such an agreement existed, he contends, it could not be valid, as it was not in writing.

Greenberg asks $15,000 which he says he spent in hospital bills, a wardrobe, a trip to Mexico and other expenses which he attributes to his wife's employment by the comedian.

Wynn said that Greenberg is his uncle. "My own uncle," he exclaimed. "They think I have a lot of money and they want some," he added.

AIRCRAFT CARRIERS SLOW CANAL TRANSIT

Chance for Record Passes as Rain, Fog Hamper Operations.

CRISTOBAL, Canal Zone, Oct. 24.—(P)—The huge aircraft carriers Lexington and Saratoga sideswiped and smashed concrete lamp posts during lockage today and laid part of the United States fleet behind them in Gatun lock during the surprise transit to the Pacific.

It was believed the marine commandant of the Canal Zone anticipates inability to keep the schedule of the ships' movement, which was set for completion at noon tomorrow.

At 6 a. m. today, the fleet was 30 miles late because of intermittent heavy rains retarded operations. The flagship entered the canal, with the battleship Mississippi, Nevada, Arizona, Los Angeles, and the cruisers Indianapolis, Louisville, Houston and Chicago.

On the other hand, it was noted that a republican victory in California might tend to enhance that party's chances in the next presidential elections by starting a reaction.

Port officials were reluctant to give details of the delay, but 15 minutes was the estimated time lost in locking the Saratoga and Lexington. The ships ahead of the aircraft carriers cleared the canal. The warships arriving at Balboa were refueled and taken to anchorage.

Headquarters of the 15th naval district issued a statement that the maneuver was working well.

All commercial traffic was suspended for two hours.

It took the Lexington nearly 12 hours to make the regular six-hour transit of the canal, and the Saratoga even longer, upsetting the schedule of the fleet's transit.

Present indications were that it would take 100 vessels 44 hours as contrasted to the previous eastward transit of 110 vessels in 47 hours.

Afghanistan, India and more vessels were arriving at east and west terminals hourly. There were 33 at Cristobal. Fog and rain were hampering their operations.

CRIPPLED BY TYPHOON, TANKER IS GIVEN AID

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 24.—(P)—Twelfth naval district headquarters here reported the U. S. S. Gold Star wirelessed today it had met the Richard O. Collyer tanker, Harry Doherty, rammed by a typhoon at 9:30 a. m. today (P. S. T.) and started conveying her toward Guam.

The message did not give the position at time of contact.

Doomed Estonians May Take Our Lives

REVAL, Estonia, Oct. 24.—(P)—A presidential decree was issued today making it impossible in future for persons condemned to death in Estonia to commit suicide by poison rather than wait to be hanged.

The decree provides that one hour before the scheduled execution, a condemned prisoner must be transported to the death cell, where the state prosecutor will read the death sentence. He will ask whether the doomed person is willing to commit suicide by poison.

If the reply is "yes," the prosecutor will order the hangman to administer a lethal dose of poison—of a kind prescribed by the national board of health—and if the prisoner fails to take it within five minutes, he will be hanged.

DETROIT DEATH SUSPECT ARRESTED IN KENTUCKY

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 24.—(P)—Postponement of the trial of Mrs. Frances Robinson in the Stoll kidnapping case until November 5, announced likely today as the result of the fact that he would resort to violence to obtain any end. If he were of the insurrectionists like those who are an outlet for the grievances of Emory University, it is a Christian institution and operates on Christian principles. That Yagol is not an insurrectionist is evidenced by the fact that he is surrounded by the large number of Emory students attending the hearings involving him. Imagine, if you can, a confirmed and sincere pacifist slaving away at the study of Emory University, the best in the country, about which he knows more than almost anyone in Georgia. In an earnest effort to expose the secret of his remarkable chemical phenomenon, and a few hours later finding himself in jail on a charge of inciting to riot. No! Yagol is at worst guilty of an indiscretion, but not of any capital offense; he is no menace to our country. That is the opinion of the Emory student body, and we believe, to a man, in his innocence."

Mitchell on Trial in Ambush Slaying

Marion County Farmer Denies Shooting Neighbor.

BUENA VISTA, Ga., Oct. 24.—(P)

W. F. Mitchell, Marion county farmer, was placed on trial in superior court here today charged with murder in connection with the ambush slaying of his neighbor, Burdell Thompson, September 10.

C. N. Phillips, Ivory Peat and Marley Thompson, his widow, testified Thompson told them immediately after the killing that he was shot by Mitchell.

The south, the court offered excellent possibilities for the manufacture of whitewares, which embrace tableware, electrical porcelain, sanitary ware, pottery and floor tile.

"Conditions during the past few years," Dr. Henry said, "have caused numbers of factories in the central southwest to close down."

The south, he said, offers excellent possibilities for the manufacture of whitewares, which embrace tableware, electrical porcelain, sanitary ware, pottery and floor tile.

SCRIP TO BE PAID CITY'S EMPLOYEES

Key West Move To Have Council Approve Issuance of $900,000 Worth.

City employees and school teachers will be paid November and December salaries in scrip, it was indicated Wednesday when B. Graham West, city comptroller, conferred with Mayor James L. Key regarding pay roll bills.

More than $900,000 worth of scrip probably will be issued to meet the pay rolls for the next two months because of the depleted condition of the city coffers.

Comptroller West Wednesday began preparation of a measure to present next week to the finance committee of council for consideration and to council at its meeting the first week of November. The measure will authorize the use of scrip. Lack of collection of taxes since an extension was granted before it, has will be issued caused a drastic drop in immediate revenue.

The scrip bearing 4 per cent interest will be made returnable in May, 1935.

Little Cash To Be Paid.

"Only employees who are paid by the week will get cash," Mayor Key said. "We do not know exactly how much paper will have to be used because we don't know how much money we will have."

"I think we will pay all monthly and semi-monthly salaries in scrip and devote what cash we have to paying up our outstanding debts."

The mayor said he was "tired" of having large outstanding debts and felt this was a good chance to due.

"This scrip is as good as the city government," he declared, "and merchants will be glad to accept it any time. We'll figure out some way to redeem it by the time it comes due."

Tax assessors this week were lamenting the slow collections of taxes. They said people stopped paying immediately the extension in time was granted, and as a result the city's finances had become strained.

Officials urged that public-spirited citizens of Atlanta pay their taxes as soon as possible, even though the time limit was extended, in order to relieve this condition.

Key Says Plan Better.

Comptroller West said the plan of issuing scrip for the last two months of 1933 would be practical identical with that of last year. The mayor asserted it would be better because preparations are being started

Wife's Alimony Is Cut After Long Journey

NEWARK, Oct. 24.—(P) Mrs. Dorothy Loewenstein, 25, spent train fare from Charleston, S. C., to come here to ask for an increase in the $15 a week alimony she has been collecting from her husband, Dr. Aaron Loewenstein, South Orange physician, she lost $5 a week.

"If she can afford train fare up here from the south it is quite apparent that $15 a week is too much," Advisory Master John A. Matthews said yesterday in ordering the sum reduced to $10.

This year in good time and there will be no hitches in the program.

The monthly pay roll of the city is approximately half a million dollars.

Salaries paid semi-monthly or monthly get $450,000 of this amount while weekly wages amount to about $50,000.

The scrip issue will affect all employees in the city system and the schools. A warning to holders of 1933 scrip to cash the certificates before November 1 was issued Wednesday by the comptroller's department. Less than $2,000 of the scrip is out at present but the city plans to close out the account and the paper must be cashed at the Fulton National bank by the end of this month.

Penalties Increased For Liquor Violations

Thirteen separate counts with which a person may be charged by the federal government for handling non-tax groceries, and a result, the severity of charges against illicit liquor dealers, according to A. S. Anderson, acting investigator, alcohol tax unit, of the bureau of internal revenue.

"Since the repeal of the eighteenth amendment many people do not realize the severity of the penalties for violation of federal revenue laws, particularly those regarding manufacture, transportation, possession and sale of illicit non-tax paid alcohol beverages," Mr. Anderson said.

Federal revenue officers may make arrests for possessing unregistered distilling apparatus, operating a still without bond, operating a still with intent to defraud, working at a still house, no signs, using a false name, still being open sign, transporting non-tax paid liquor, and for buying, selling, concealing or possessing non-tax paid liquor.

Cloudy Skies and Rain Are Predicted Today

Cloudy skies today are likely to develop into rain late this afternoon or tonight, according to Forecaster George W. Mindling.

"We may expect a break in the fair weather we have been having," Mr. Mindling stated, "but the temperatures should remain about the same."

The mercury Wednesday ranged between 54 and 76 degrees. Temperature today is expected to register between 54 and 74 degrees.

Rain areas moving toward Atlanta from the Mississippi valley region are given as the cause for the expected precipitation.

Atlanta Food Prices Show Drop of 1.2 Pct.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—The bureau of labor statistics Wednesday revealed that retail food prices in the Atlanta area decreased 1.2 per cent during the period from Sept. 15 to October 9. The bureau reported that the October 9 prices were 10.9 per cent higher than the prices of October 10, 1933, and 18.1 per cent higher than those of October 15, 1932.

The report said that the decline in Atlanta was greater than any recorded in some cities with the exception of Richmond, Va.

Naval Commander at Pensacola Flying Here for Navy Day Friday

With Captain Rufus Zogbaum, commanding of the naval air station at Pensacola as the principal speaker of the day, Atlanta Friday will join the rest of the nation in commemorating Navy Day, the exercises also honoring the memory of the late President Theodore Roosevelt who did so much toward improvement of the navy during his two administrations.

Captain Zogbaum will be the honored guest and principal speaker at the Navy Day dinner at 6:30 o'clock Friday night at the Atlanta Biltmore hotel. Naval and naval reserve officers, marine corps officers and army officers of the Atlanta area will join in the dinner. Governor Eugene Talmadge, Senator Richard B. Russell Jr., a member of the senate committee on naval affairs, and the board of governors of the United States Naval Academy; Mayor James L. Key, Congressman Robert Rampspeck and Dr. M. L. Brittain, president of Georgia Tech, will also be among the guests.

Following the dinner, Captain Zogbaum will deliver the Navy Day address over radio station WSB.

Captain Zogbaum is widely known in Atlanta, having led the city's participation in the Navy Day observance here two years ago. He has been in command at the Pensacola station for a number of years.

During his visit to Atlanta Captain Zogbaum will inspect the naval reserve unit and the R. O. T. C. unit at Georgia Tech. The Pensacola commandant also will visit the new naval station.

The Navy Day program here is in charge of Commander Jesse Draper. Preceding the dinner at the Biltmore, the Tech unit will present a program over Station WGST, beginning at 5:15 o'clock. A band concert will be followed by addresses by Dr. Brittain and Commander Bowman.

The program here will be one of several arranged by Georgia cities, according to Commander Draper.

At Macon the program will be under the direction of Lieutenant Stanley Jones, navy recruiting officer for Georgia, while at Savannah a group of naval officers will be in charge of the observance. A naval officer from Tech will speak before the Graniteville Lions Club Thursday noon at that city observes Navy Day.

MODERNIZING BENEFITS APARTMENTS, HOMES

Actual Cases of Rental Increases, Vacancy Decreases Reported.

Actual cases of homes and business properties benefiting from modernization are pouring into the office of the Atlanta Better Housing Campaign, it was announced Wednesday. All cases which have come to the attention of officials show favorable rental increase or a decreased percentage of vacancies after repairs or remodeling.

An apartment of six units located on Parkview drive in the Forrest avenue area had been for some time producing approximately $1,200 per year income, due to lack of appeal and vacancies. The condition of the building was such that all the tenants had moved out, leaving the property 100 per cent vacant. Approximately $1,000 was spent on reconditioning and remodeling and as a result the building is now entirely occupied and is producing approximately $2,200 per year—almost twice as much as the former gross income.

In Atlanta Estates are located 20 homes controlled by one real estate firm. Of these, 12 have been unoccupied for some time. Repairs were needed on all of these homes.

Although it is not customary for homes held for rental to be reconditioned until a tenant is found for them, these buildings were repaired and modernized. Needed repairs were made and considerable modernization work done. As a result, within 90 days after the process of reconditioning had been completed all of the buildings were rented. In the general section, a five-room house underwent minor repairs worth approximately $70. The result was a rental increase from $35 to $45 per month, and the property became more valuable.

According to W. W. Winter, general chairman of the Atlanta Better Housing Campaign, the way to take "For Rent" signs off vacant property is to make needed repairs and modernization.

"An indication of modernization needs may be had by talking with the management of the home. Many kitchens make a veritable ordeal of the task of preparing meals—particularly is this true when the kitchen has a poor arrangement of equipment and is lacking up-to-date facilities for the housewife," he said. "In Atlanta a large percentage of the homes are older than 25 years and kitchens are at that time had none of the modern kitchen improvements now available. Any old kitchen, no matter how great its shortcomings, can be transformed into a place of beauty and charm and made comfortable and convenient. That your kitchen is uncomfortable and drab and dingy probably never realized. It is much like other sections of your house."

HEALTH EXAMINATIONS WILL COST $1.50 EACH

Physical examinations for handlers of food and drinks for public consumption, as required by city ordinance, will be given by Atlanta doctors the low price was set because the public health will be greatly protected by weeding out handlers of food who have communicable diseases.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 24.—(P) Omar Abid, who used to walk over the burning sands of the Holy Land, where he was born, was in court today asking a jury to award him $10,000 for injuries he said he received as a result of a walk over the "burning sands" at a lodge initiation.

County Medical Society announced Wednesday.

Council recently passed the ordinance forcing all persons handling foods to be examined twice yearly and will issue certificates of health, for which a charge of 50 cents will be exacted. All persons affected must be examined by Nov. 15. Doctors said the low price was set because the public health will be greatly protected by weeding out handlers of food who have communicable diseases.

ROBBER AND BURGLAR GET LONG SENTENCES

Two heavy felony sentences were meted out in Fulton superior court Wednesday. Ed Norwood, negro, was given a 15-to-20-year sentence by Judge G. H. Howard following his conviction for the robbery of B. Z. Turner, Auburn avenue storekeeper, on Aug. 15, when $18 in money was taken.

Another negro, John Wilks, pleaded guilty before Judge Lee B. Wyatt, in the emergency division, to a charge of burglarizing the laundry of Chin Wing, a Chinese, and was given a 10-year sentence, the court remarking that he hoped that would be sufficient time in which to "think over his crime."

Calls Upon Them To Begin Supplying Credit Needs at Once.

dress to a convention which had been through its speakers—severely critical of many administration relief, monetary and financial policies, and which had insistently maintained that the banks were not only willing, but eager to lend their money.

This contention was disputed earlier in the day by Jess Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Corporation. He asserted that, despite records of that agency showed the banks had been unwilling to make loans which the RFC considered sound.

On monetary uncertainty, which the banks had urged be cleared up, the president did have this to say:

"With respect to international relationships, I have been glad to note the growing appreciation in other nations of the desirability of arriving as quickly as possible, at a point of steadiness of prices and values. This is the greater steadiness we have constantly kept before us as our national policy."

This passage, which some thought pointed toward stabilization of the currency on an international basis, was quickly contrasted with Mr. Roosevelt's statement of a fortnight ago that such stabilization could not be undertaken until the prices of certain unnamed American commodities had reached a more desirable level.

NRA at Work on Code.

During the day, NRA was at work on the banking code. It decided upon the elimination of the fair practice provisions of that compact, leaving to the Blue Eagle agency only the regulation of the code's wage and hour provisions.

The bankers had suggested that the individual bank be left free to exact its own service charge upon accounts dropping below a fixed figure.

The house agreed to keep the question of the lending function of the banks for economic recovery, he said:

"The present steady and unmistakable revival of public demand for goods and services should provide the assurance necessary to the financing of industrial life. The government is bending every effort through the treasury, the federal reserve system, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and the federal housing administration to facilitate and encourage the revival of private investment."

He pointed out that the administration had suggested that the chief executive then held out a hopeful sign for the immediate future. Assuming that the traditional functions of the banks will remain, the question should be left to bankers or groups of banks for determination.

In his address, Mr. Roosevelt defined his conception of the principal

Recognition Is Asked For "Esthetic Surgery"

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—(AP)—A defense of the art of the surgeon's knife for the sake of beauty alone when the psychological benefit to be derived by the patient is great, was voiced by Sir Harold Gillies, noted London surgeon.

He pleaded for recognition of the esthetic surgeon before members of the medical profession at the Northwestern University medical school last night. Referring to plastic surgery as "the Cinderella of surgery," he urged his listeners to adopt toward it an attitude which would remove "the sense of shame" which he said clung to it.

He pointed out that the chief executive of a great nation.

"A true function of the head of the government of the United States," he said, "is to find among the discordant elements that unity of purpose that is best for the nation as a whole." He added: "The government is not merely one of many co-ordinate groups in the community or the nation, but government is essentially the outward expression of the unity and leadership of all groups."

"Consequently, the old fallacious notion of the bankers on one side and the government on the other as more or less equal and independent units has passed away."

"Government by the necessity of things must be the leader, must be the judge of the conflicting interests of all groups in the community, including bankers. The government is the outward expression of the common life of all citizens."

Appeals for Unity.

Appealing again for unity of action, Mr. Roosevelt said that the national wealth "is not a static thing" and that it grows when men co-operate but stagnates in an atmosphere of misunderstanding and misrepresentation—an accord so necessary to real recovery.

Two points stood out in relief, namely the statement of the president indicating the government's willingness to curtail federal lending activities as soon as private capital is available and the demands of business and industry; and the recognition of the capitalistic theory of wealth as the reward for labor of mind and hand.

More stress was placed on the conciliatory tone of the message to the bankers than to its content. It represented in the opinion of the financial community, a first step toward a complete rapprochement between banking and the administration—an accord so necessary to real recovery.

BULLISH REACTION TO SPEECH LOOMS

Roosevelt's Silence on Moot Issues Fails To Stir Conservatives.

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—(UP)—President Roosevelt's speech tonight before the American Bankers' Association convention impressed Wall Street favorably.

There was a feeling in the markets that the president had not really been able to dispel the unemployment situation, the need for heavy expenditures for relief, or make for a balanced budget or a stabilized dollar.

Those conservatives who express the true opinion in financial circles are not disappointed in the omission of the president's speech. They held the president could not honestly say at this time he would balance the budget when the relief burden was so great. And it would be equally difficult to arrive at a stabilized currency without world co-operating that seems likely at this time.

More stress was placed on the conciliatory tone of the message to the bankers than to its content. It represented in the opinion of the financial community, a first step toward a complete rapprochement between banking and the administration—an accord so necessary to real recovery.

Text of Roosevelt's Address Before Bankers of Nation

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—(AP)—The text of President Roosevelt's address tonight before the American Bankers' Association.

I am pleased to let you tonight about your invitation to speak to you informally about some of our common problems. As many of you know by personal experience, it is not a new thing for me to talk with bankers. I have been seeing many of your numbers almost daily during the past year, and let me make it quite clear that these feelings I have not at all been talking.

I have been a good listener and I have asked many questions. I have found there is the striking lack of unanimity of opinion among bankers that characterizes many other groups in the country. It has been my purpose to seek out underlying agreements in the opinions that bankers have on these matters.

A true function of the head of the government of the United States is to find among many discordant elements that unity of purpose that is best for the nation as a whole. This is necessary because government is not merely one of many co-ordinate groups in the community or the nation, but government is essentially the expression of the unity and the leadership of all groups.

He asserted that there could be no "sustained prosperity and no return to normal conditions without actual bank lending for all legitimate purposes, even stimulated lending." It was better, he added, to make slow loans than to demand repayment immediately.

The banks, he said, were still over-emphasizing the necessity for liquidity and for collecting outstanding slow loans, regardless of their soundness. A continuation of such a policy, he warned, would "put the government under the leading business."

Turning to the question of currency and stabilization of the dollar, Jones said the American monetary unit was "the best money any patriotic American could have." To be afraid of your dollar," he added, is "to be afraid of your country."

"We sometimes hear bankers say that they don't want to lend because they do not know with what kind of money they will be paid," he continued. "I wonder if they expect the dollar in the vault to be any better than the dollar at interest. That argument fails about the flattest of any that we hear."

Eager for Loan Participation. The RFC chairman reported his eagerness that the banks participate in government loans to industry and possibly to take over entirely.

He said that in many cases such loans would be repaid by the banks themselves after the RFC had agreed to make the extension of credit involved.

The corporation's two most pressing problems he outlined as the future of the railroads and the question of rehabilitating the market for real estate. The latter was stressed because the savings of many individuals were being used to finance the market.

"The railroads are one of our biggest users of materials, and employers of labor, and are necessary to our national existence," he said. "They have borrowed heavily from the government in the past and repaid their loans. Many of these will need government loans during the coming year. This is something that the nation will need to meet for the common good."

"Real estate mortgages constitute our really big problem. They make up our biggest source of investment, aggregating in all forms more than $35,000,000,000 for urban loans alone, divided approximately: $7,000,000,000 by building and loan associations, $8,000,000,000 by savings companies, $9,000,000,000 by banks, including mutual savings banks; $5,000,000,000 in real estate bonds and the balance by individuals, trustees, educational and charitable institutions and fire and casualty companies."

Jones revealed that the RFC is ready upon the request of the congress to enter into negotiations with the president's proposal to subscribe for or make loans on the preferred stock of trust companies or their capital notes or debentures if they are specializing in mortgage lending.

J. F. T. O'Connor, comptroller of the currency, addressed the convention briefly, saying that the 14-day closed session of the last of year's bank holiday, 18 only had not now been disposed of. Of the 18, he added, 14 have approved reorganization plans.

Government found it necessary to create and get under way new emergency credit agencies and to use to the fullest extent the already existing Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

These credit agencies moved with heroic energy, and are a source of the utmost satisfaction to find that when the federal deposit insurance corporation went into operation, the banking structure had regained a very considerable amount of its strength and its vitality.

I think it is only fair to say that never since the formation of our government has such a task been achieved in so short a time. Happily, the present security of our banks bears witness to the wise course that we have pursued.

I venture to suggest to you that when the history of these years comes to be written, while the closing and the reopening of the banks will occupy prominent place in the fact that within a few months not only was the banking structure strengthened but the great governmental lending agencies went into action and also survived from disastrous deflation, liquidation and loss a vast portion of the farms, homes, railroads and corporations of the nation. This is surely a record of the security and happiness of all of us.

Just as it is to be expected that the banks will resume their responsibility and take up the burden that the government has assumed through its credit agencies, so I assume and expect that private business generally will be finding its way to the credit resources which the present liquidity of banks makes possible.

Our traditional system has been built upon this principle and the recovery of our economic life should be accomplished through the assumption of this responsibility.

BUXING DEMANDS AN ASSURANCE. The present steady and unmistakable revival of public demand for goods and services should provide the assurance necessary to the financing of industrial life. The government is bending every effort through the treasury, the federal reserve system, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the securities and exchange commission and the federal home administration to stimulate and encourage the revival of private investment.

I am grateful to know of the expression of belief public and private that we shall make toward this objective something that no one has the wisdom or the hardihood to estimate.

This recognition reflects a growing appreciation of the problems resting upon a responsible chief executive.

With respect to international relations, I have been glad to note the growing interest in other nations of the desirability of arriving as quickly as possible at a point of steadiness of prices and values. This objective of a greater steadiness we have constantly kept before us as our national policy.

The fact that American business men and bankers are getting more and more interested in the affairs of our nation and of international affairs is manifesting itself in many ways. It seems to me that this is a very important development.

CONFIDENCE PRIME NEED. Government should assert its leadership in encouraging not only the confidence of the people in banks and banking in view of the important role that banks and banking may perform for the welfare of the nation.

It is necessary to make this confidence a real and living thing by assisting banks to render themselves useful and worthy of this confidence through wise supervision. A third purpose now offers, however, to press this point with all earnestness to press this point.

While there are before us still the need for large expenditures for the relief of unemployment, I think we should all proceed in the expectation that the revival of business activity will steadily reduce this burden.

I am grateful to know of the expression of belief public and private that we shall make toward this objective something that no one has the wisdom or the hardihood to estimate.

This recognition reflects a growing appreciation of the problems resting upon a responsible chief executive.

I need not tell you that true wealth is not a static thing.

I need not tell you that the disposition of men to create and to distribute the goods of life with rising standards of living.

Wealth grows when men co-operate;

but it stagnates in an atmosphere of misunderstanding and misrepresentation.

Health, wealth and the growth of true wealth.

LONG BATTLE SEEN AT NAVAL MEETING

Fears Expressed That
Tri-Power Conversations
May Be Wrecked.

LONDON, Oct. 24.—(AP)—A lengthy battle over the principle of equality in the defensive naval armaments, urged by Japan, faced representatives of the world's three major sea powers tonight, with fears expressed that the tri-power conversations might be wrecked.

Both British and American delegations showed distinct coolness toward the Japanese proposal for a new naval treaty, based on this principle, to replace the Washington and London treaties.

While neither would admit that the principle would be rejected, both the British and the American conferees indicated they were far from pleased with the Japanese plan.

A general feeling in both delegations was that the Japanese thus far have failed to make their points acceptable, though it was pointed out that Ambassador Tsuneo Matsudaira and Admiral Isoroku Yamamoto have yet to reveal the technical details of their plan before opinions can be formed.

The Japanese delegates conferred an hour today with Norman H. Davis and Admiral William H. Standley, the American representatives, after broaching their plan yesterday to the British, headed by Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald and including Sir John Simon, minister for foreign affairs, and Sir Ernest R. Bevin, Ernest Monckton, first lord of the admiralty.

British and American quarters today emphasized their opinion that existing treaties have sufficient guarantees for equality in security of the signatory powers, and their feeling that the Japanese proposals, until they offer satisfactory reasons for jettisoning these treaties, can only lead to mutual suspicion.

Meanwhile word reached the conferees from the continent that France and Italy are interested in Japan's plea for equality. Those nations, while not represented at the conferences here, have observers on the ground.

The Americans feel that any recognition of the principle of equality would mean throwing the doors wide open to similar claims by many other powers. France and Italy among them.

LOW INOCULATION FEES ARE SET FOR CHILDREN

Child health hour, during which children unable to pay regular fees for diphtheria, smallpox and typhoid immunization will be inoculated at a specially low cost, will be conducted here with all members of the Fulton County Medical Society, it was announced Wednesday.

As relatively few children in Fulton county are protected from these preventable diseases, the doctors have agreed to charge only $1 per injection during the health hour each Friday afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock in their private offices. Parents not financially able to pay regular fees are urged to take advantage of the reduced cost.

A survey conducted last spring by the city health department and CWA workers revealed that 66 per cent of preschool age children were immunized against diphtheria; 88.1 per cent are unprotected against typhoid fever; and 78.6 per cent have not been vaccinated against smallpox.

LEADERS ARE INVITED TO EASTMAN LUNCHEON

Mayor James L. Key and a number of other prominent Atlantans have been invited to attend the luncheon. Wednesday, November 6, honoring Joseph B. Eastman, federal railroad coordinator, it was announced Wednesday. He will be the guest of Atlanta civic organizations at the luncheon here.

Mr. Eastman, who also is a member of the interstate commerce commission, will speak on "Rail Transportation." The groups sponsoring the meeting include the Atlanta Freight Bureau, the Atlanta Traffic Club, the Chamber of Commerce and the Kiwanis Club.

THE LAUGHING GIRL MYSTERY

By Viola Paradise

to Sheridan. "That explains everything, my dear—why you looked at her so—so lovingly."

Harral, at the telephone extension, took down the conversation with Mrs. Sherry, and began by deppecting Mrs. Sherry's extravagance, but when he told her she was costing nothing, she settled down for a long talk. "By the way, Aunt Anne," Sherry said, "do you know the names of any of my English relatives?"

"Of course! And Sherry, you must send them wedding announcements. There was Asbury Sheridan. He lived near Clively, but out in the country. If you address it, it will reach Clively."

"Ashbury—was that the cousin I was told to visit as a child?"

"Yes, and he had two sons, Percy and Harold. There were other Sheridans, too, but I believe your parents didn't visit them."

"How about a little girl named Daisy?"

"Imagine your remembering her. Yes, her mother was a distant relative of your cousin Ashbury's wife. What did you say her last name was?"

"I didn't. That's the thing I want to know."

"Well, you'd better not tell your Adelaide that! Because your mother said you took a shine to Daisy, Let's say Satterly, that was it. Daisy Satterly. Her people lived in Birmingham. They were just visiting the Sheridans."

"Thanks," said Sherry. "And now tell me, how's the scintilla?"

"Much better, dear. But I don't think I'll have the strength to come down to the wedding. I did think I might manage it."

"Oh, don't you mustn't. Adelaide and I will visit you as soon as we get back. How's Aunt Constance?"

"Always well. Tell her I'm sending her iron constitution."

"Here she is. Good-by, dear. If I could speak to you again before the wedding."

"Of course, I'll do my best."

"Hello, Aunt Constance. How are you?"

"Fine, Sherry how are you?"

"Fine," said Sherry. "Aunt Constance, I want you to do something for me. Don't let Aunt Anne guess I'm talking about, and keep your end of the conversation gay, will you? There's some bad news—a horrid mixup. That Daisy Satterly is missing. Her last letter to me was dated yesterday. She might be here."

"All right," said Sheridan. "Tell her I'm sending her a telegram."

Sheridan was about to pick up the receiver, but Alby said to Harral, "Get it on the extension. Mrs. Anne Hartley, Hotel Brunswick, Boston."

Sheridan nodded. As Harral waited for the connection, Adelaide murmured,

STATE BAR BODY SEEKS TWO JUDICIAL CHANGES

Graham Wright Tells of Plans To Be Presented Before Next Assembly.

The Georgia Bar Association will call on the legislature at its next session to adopt two important laws, one calling for establishment of a judicial commission to regulate practice and proceedings before all of the courts, high and low, and the other setting up the association as the ruling body of the state's lawyers, passing on their fitness to be members of the bar and otherwise governing the profession and its membership.

This was revealed Wednesday night by Graham Wright, of Rome, president of the Georgia Bar Association, in an address over radio station WGST, the third of a series sponsored by the association. The first address was made last week by Judge Samuel H. Sibley of the United States circuit court of appeals. The third, next week, will be made by Hughes Spalding of Atlanta.

In his address, Wednesday night, Mr. Wright said that the bar association had bills prepared for the legislature to carry out its two chief purposes of the present and that all leading members of the organization would work for their adoption.

The judicial council, if created, will be composed of the chief justice of the state supreme court, the chief justice of that court, the chairman of the judiciary committee of the senate and house of representatives, one judge of the court of appeals, two superior court judges, five lawyers and three laymen. It will be the duty of the council to make whatever changes it considers necessary to expedite and modernize court procedure and any bill of the council will be given powers which now are confined to the legislature.

The second measure, Mr. Wright pointed out, will make all lawyers of the state members of the bar association and place them under control of the association for which a board of governors is to be set up, one governor for each superior court circuit in the state.

PHEASANTS.
One of the most delightful books I have ever read is William Beebe's "Pheasant Jungles." In his work Beebe tells some of the sidelights of his work in the Himalayas and other localities while working on the monograph of the pheasants of the world. It is sheer scientific romance. If any of you object to my combination of science and romance in the preceding sentence, hold off until you read this book, then say what you will.

No true pheasant live in Georgia. The birds here called the native pheasant, but that is really the ruffed grouse (Bonasa umbellus), of which we will have more to say later.

They are all introduced birds then. Yes, their original home is Asia. They are Mongolian, Chinese, Burman or Tibetan in origin. There is a rare callow, the ring-necked pheasant, according to the same breeds I know, is mighty hard to find in the game state, since it has been crossed too many times with the ring-necked pheasant.

Numerous attempts have been made to introduce the pheasant into Georgia as an added attraction in the game line. That some of these have partially succeeded is encouraging. There is evidence to the effect that the pheasant is a question of food and cover. We should investigate the possibility of getting the proper food for these beautiful birds. I know of nothing more unbelievable than the cock of the golden pheasant in his full plumage. I should like to see them become abundant in this country, provided they would not interfere with other birds which are already native and well established. I am glad the pheasant is becoming so abundant in the midwest, reports from Iowa and the Dakotas indicating that they are really successful there in a spectacular way.

Still, there is something about Georgia that doesn't appear to agree with them. I wonder what it is?

AUTOMOTIVE CLUB WILL MEET FRIDAY

The Southeastern Automotive Boosters Club will hold its annual meeting and election of officers at the Winfield Hotel at 10 a.m. Friday. This will be followed by a luncheon and golf tournament at Druid Hills Club in the afternoon. A dinner-dance will be given at 7:30.

The Automotive Boosters' Club is an international organization with 22 sectional groups in the United States, one in Canada and one in Mexico. The Southeastern club, with headquarters in Atlanta, has approximately 100 members composed of southern managers and representatives of leading automotive accessory equipment and parts manufacturers in the country.

Present officers, to be succeeded following Friday, are: K. W. Klier, president; Joe L. Estes, first vice president; Harry L. Malshy, second vice president; Joe D. Wells, treasurer; E. A. McGinty, secretary.

Grand Jury Launches
School Investigation

The grand jury investigation of the city schools was begun Wednesday.

George S. Lowman, chairman of the schools committee of the present Fulton county grand jury, and school officials visited a number of schools Wednesday and inspected the grounds, plants, classrooms, laboratories, libraries, rooms, and shops, and talked with teachers and principals.

The investigation was requested by Mayor James L. Key, who declared that expenditures in the schools are too great and that some departments are useless. Lowman said the investigation would be made but that he would study the advisability of combining the city and county systems in the interest of better educational facilities.

Reid Hunter and T. W. Clift, assistant school superintendents, and E. C. Coleman accompanied Chairman Lowman and W. R. Whittaker to the following schools: Tenth Street, Tech High, Boys' High, Girls' High, Bass Junior High, the David T. Howard school for negroes and the school for the deaf. Lowman and Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of city schools, held conference earlier this week.

The other states have sensed that if Georgia wins its fight to continue the two-cent-per-mile maximum passenger rate they too can put the rate into effect," the commission chairman said. "Georgia is the only state in the Union in which the two-cent rate is effective in Pullman, and if we win our case it will benefit the other states as well."

An I. C. C. examiner will conduct a hearing on the railroads' application for a freight rate increase at Birmingham, November 7, and without said that the Georgia commission would be represented at that hearing, along with the commissioners of the other southeastern states.

CHRYSANthemum SHOW OF SCHOOLS IS SET FOR MONDAY

The sixth annual chrysanthemum show of the Atlanta public schools children will be held next Monday at the Tenth Street school, Miss Hattie Rainwater, director of nature study and gardening in the public school system, announced. The show will be staged for Mrs. Joe Thompson and her pupils of Grade 5 Low, the pupils acting as hosts.

The judges for the show will be Mrs. Charles E. Walker, Miss Mae Hudson and Mrs. G. H. Hemmings with the judging beginning at 11 o'clock. Visiting hours will be from 2 until 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

There will be various prizes awarded for the different specimens of the flower. There also will be prizes for the schools making the best showings.

On Wednesday, November 7, the fourth annual chrysanthemum show of the children of Negro schools will be held at the Gray Street school. The judges for this show will be Mrs. Claude T. Ivey, Mrs. Eugene V. Kemp and Miss Sarah Jackson.

Gas Price To Remain At 16 Cents Today

Atlanta will continue to enjoy 16-cent gasoline today, it was said Wednesday when major companies let it be known that there would be no increase nor no further reduction in prices.

Texas Gulf Standard and Wofford were selling regular gas at 16 cents, while one independent, the Southern Oil Stores, was selling the fuel at 15 cents.

Another independent, the Advance Oil Company, sent a telegram to President Roosevelt urging him to force the big companies from underselling.

The price decline began last Friday when regular gas was selling at 22 cents a gallon.

CURTIS QUARTET TO OPEN SEASON AT WOMAN'S CLUB

The Curtis string quartet will open the Atlanta Music Club's season of evening programs with a concert next Wednesday, October 31, at 8:30 o'clock in the Atlanta Woman's Club auditorium.

This event was arranged by Mrs. Charles Chalmers, chairman of this series, primarily for the music club membership, but will be open to the general public for a general admission fee of $2. Members of the club will be admitted free of charge.

The Curtis string quartet, an organization of four young men who have been working together for seven years, ranks high in the field of chamber music. Since its first public appearance in 1927, sponsored by the Curtis Institute of Music, Philadelphia, the group has gained a distinctive position. Extreme tours of large cities throughout the United States have drawn forth enthusiastic reviews by noted critics.

The players are Jascha Brodsky, violin; Benjamin Sharlin, violin; Max Aronoff, viola, and Orlando Cole, violoncello.

Mr. Harold McKenzie, president of the Atlanta Music Club, and Mrs. John Mullin, membership chairman, announce that holders of All-Star concert season tickets are still entitled to the reduction privilege on the music club membership.

Trial Date Set.

JACKSON, Miss., Oct. 24.—(P)—For the third time General J. B. Stirling, president of the defunct First National bank of Jackson, will go on trial in federal court here on indictments charging him with violation of the national banking act provisions. His trial was set today for November 7.

MURAL AT BASS SCHOOL TO BE DEDICATED TODAY

The newly completed mural-decorations on the proscenium arch of the William A. Bass Junior High school auditorium will be dedicated at 1:45 o'clock this afternoon at a meeting of students, patrons and friends of the school. A diversified program of music, dances and talks has been arranged for the occasion by J. L. Jackson, art teacher of the school.

The large mural, measuring five feet in height and 85 feet in length, is the work of Miss Ruth Alsobrook and Ernestine Tinsley, two local artists. J. J. Haverty, chairman of the local unit of the art division of the PWA, which provided the funds for the project, will present the mural to the school on behalf of the United States government.

SENATOR M'KELLAR REVEALS REASON FOR BACHELORHOOD

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Oct. 24. (AP)—Senator Kenneth McKellar, Tennessee's bachelor legislator, says he proposed once but the lady hasn't made up her mind yet.

Asked why he had never married, Senator McKellar was asked if he intended to marry to eliminate the bachelorhood issue which has been raised facetiously during the campaign. His fusion opponent, former Governor Ben W. Hooper, is married.

The senator said he was willing to marry, but added "I guess there isn't a chance. I've courted 101 girls, but none of them would have me."

Asked why he had never married, Senator McKellar explained: "I was in love once and I finally got up the courage to ask her if she loved me. 'Renny, I don't know whether I love you or not,' she told me. So I've been waiting ever since for her to decide."

THE GAIN IN WORKERS

The census bureau report on the increase in workers in retail establishments in Georgia during 1933 furnishes gratifying evidence of the splendid co-operation given by the merchants of the state to the nation-wide program to reduce unemployment.

Last year those employed in retail establishments increased from 48,591 in January to 64,246 in December. In addition, there were 12,311 part-time employees and 28,687 employers.

The most significant and encouraging feature of these figures is that the totals are materially in advance of those for 1929, before the effects of the depression had begun to set in. In that year there were only 57,554 full-time workers and 9,490 part-time employees, despite the fact the state then had 2,000 more retail establishments than now exist.

The revenues received by retail employees are, on the average, lower than they were five years ago, but the material gain in the number of those at work reflects the marked improvement in the employment among a class of workers commonly believed not to have been as generally benefited by the recovery as the workers in industry.

The manner in which the retail establishments of the state have responded to the urgency of President Roosevelt that jobs be created for the idle is all the more outstanding in view of the fact that the retail business of Georgia totaled only $350,000,000 in 1933 as against $610,000,000 in 1929.

Had all business in every state in the Union registered such a fine showing in 1933 as did the retail stores of Georgia in the number of unemployed put on their pay rolls, the country would now be far nearer a normal economic condition.

THE NEED IS GREATER

No mere casual observation is the statement of Robert F. Maddox that the need of the Atlanta Community Chest is greater this year than ever before.

Mr. Maddox knows whereof he speaks. The statement becomes of unusual significance when he tells of Chest needs.

One of his first steps upon accepting the presidency was to get the facts about the Community Chest and its agencies first hand. Although already conscious in a general way of the businesslike conduct of the organization, Mr. Maddox was not satisfied with less than a painstaking personal study. He began a tour of the agencies; not "pop calls," but visits of careful inspection. He personally checked the records, studied the audits, questioned social welfare workers and Chest beneficiaries. As a result he reports:

"No Atlanta concern is operated in a better, more businesslike way than the Atlanta Community Chest. There is no waste; every dollar performs its task of ministering to human needs or building character. The agencies are operated with equal attention to detail. Regular and careful audits are made and budgeting is with an eye to making every dollar perform the maximum amount of good."

The agencies have their hands full. Each of them is filling a distinct and definite need; a need as great today as when they were founded, some of them as long as 40 years ago. The government work is an emergency work. There is no conflict. No dollar could be better spent in the interest of humanity than through the Community Chest, and the economic need of the Chest should be obvious to every student of business conditions."

In the face of such a testimonial, can anyone hold back? Can anyone fail to give when Chest workers call? Surely Atlanta will rise to the occasion and give gladly!

YUGOSLAVIA'S FUTURE

The restoration of a democratic form of government is vitally necessary to the solution of the internal troubles from which Yugoslavia is now suffering, according to a statement by the Foreign Policy Association in which the conditions leading up to the assassination of King Alexander are reviewed.

In discussing the demand of the Croats for the establishment of a true Slav federation, the ideal led to the creation of Yugoslavia out of Serbia, Montenegro and parts of Austria and Hungary, the statement points out that the regency of three, headed by Prince Paul, is confronted with the task of winning the collaboration of the Croats if it is to preserve Yugoslavia from dissolution, and possibly foreign invasion."

It is evident that responsible Croat leaders do not desire the failure of the Yugoslav experiment. The Croats have for centuries sought the formation of a united Slav nation. Their objection to the present confederation is that its government is dominated by only one branch of the Slavs—the Serbs—with the other peoples of Slav descent having no word in its conduct.

Despite the fact that the nation was created in 1919 at the demand of all the southern Slavs—Serbs, Croats, Slovenes and Montenegrins—the antagonisms of the various races and nationalities have not been eliminated. Largely as the result of the friction between the Roman Catholic Croats and the Greek Orthodox Serbs, King Alexander in 1930 suspended parliamentary government and established a dictatorship.

The domination of the government since by the Serbs—notedly a hard and ruthless people in their dealings with opponents—has seen the other Slavs ground down and the jails filled with their leaders. There has resulted a growing spirit of revolt, aided and abetted by Slav elements in Italy and Hungary.

This aid has been countenanced by both the Italian and Hungarian governments, which would be far from displeased over the dissolution of Yugoslavia. Should this happen, Hungary would seek to regain some of the territory taken away from her, and Italy would renew its efforts to secure a foothold on the Dalmatian coast.

Yugoslav hostility following Alexander's assassination was first centered on Italy, but has switched to Hungary following the revelation that the killer was a member of a band of terrorists with headquarters in the latter country. Now Hungarian and Yugoslav troops are being massed on the border between the two countries.

Whatever Yugoslavia's fate is, it will profoundly affect European political conditions. If the confederation should be dissolved, there will be a scramble for territory certain to involve all of the continental nations. If it survives, the question is as to whether it will line up with France, its ally for many years, or continue its recent drift to closer relations with Bulgaria and Germany. The latter development would bring immediate protests from Italy and France.

The safest course for the new régime seems to lie in granting the smallest number of words a man can make himself understood in English. Just two words are necessary: "Hell, no!"

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

The Ghost Of Everett.

Strange things take place on Mount Everest, the top of the world, in the Himalaya mountains. The book by Captain Rutledge, who led the expedition last year, is just out and he and his colleagues have each written down their experiences in the quest to reach the highest point on earth. Captain F. S. Smythe, the famous British Alpinist, writes the chapter called "The Second Attempt," wherein he tells his own tale. E. E. Shipton, took 300 meters from the highest point and won the race. He then made the last attempt alone, and has this to say on the subject:

"During my lone climb I had two strange experiences. I would rather not speak about it, but Rutledge insists. I have no intention of drawing conclusions from my experiences. I simply write down what happened. The first phenomenon was that the sky was in time gone by observed by wanderers in the deserts and in arctic regions. During my climb I had the definite impression that I was accompanied by somebody. This feeling was so strong that I did not feel the least loneliness. It actually seemed that I was tied together to my companion with a rope, and that he wanted to hold me back whenever I was on the point of slipping."

"I remember that I frequently looked over my shoulder and at one point when I felt somewhat faint and took a biscuit from my pocket, I broke it in two to offer half to my companion. I was startled to find nobody behind me. It seemed to me that 'present' was the ghost of Everett, my old friend."

On the way back, as I descended toward our camp, the feeling of being accompanied gradually left, and when I came within sight of the camp I felt very much alone.

The Second Phenomenon.

"The second experience may have been an optical illusion," continues Captain Smythe. "Personally, however, I am convinced that it was something real. I have been there about 50 meters distance from the camp, when I happened to glance in a northerly direction, I saw two extraordinary things floating in the air. They looked like sausages balloons, but sausage balloons of a queer shape, the shape of dragons. I was so interested that I stood still to look. My brain was clear, and noticed that the things had wings, which were flying up and down almost rhythmically with my own heart beat. This observation makes me feel certain that I was not the victim of an optical illusion."

"I turned my head away to the ground and verified the presence of the familiar objects. Then I looked up at the sky again. The things were still slowly sailing against the northem horizon, the summits of the mountains and the glaciers very clearly. Then a thin cloud passed overhead and the dragon-like shapes disappeared behind it. When the cloud finally had passed, the strange shapes had also disappeared."

It should be remembered that a cool scientist has the floor here, and an Englishman in addition. Their story is a most sober recital, written without the slightest attempt at sensationalism, yet of absorbing interest. (Copyright, 1934, for The Constitution.)

HEALTH TALKS

BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

LIPS GET CHAPPED AND CRACKED.

Formerly lips were interesting. I mean, to a gentleman and sometimes even to a physician. But today all lips evidently come from the five and ten. Even when the nails and hair are not done up to match, the lips are perfect and sometimes arrest the passing crowd. That seems to be the main object, and so it is on the black street.

Cosmetic lipstick is not only unobjectionable from the viewpoint of hygiene, provided it contains no poisonous ingredient, but it is desirable as a protection to the lips in some circumstances. For instance, if a person is exposed to intense sunlight a heavy application of lipstick will prevent painful inflammation of the lip from sunburn, inflammation which physicians call chilosis, or chilitis, which is Greek for inflammation of the lip, and that's a good sign we don't know much about it. Perhaps we'll get as much as a good sign as we'll get as a protection to the lips from chapping of the lips, only that wouldn't bring in more than a dollar or two, whereas in Greek it is worth five.

The habit of moistening the lips seems to excite chapping. Better to apply lipstick or even some simple salve or plain petroleum to relieve dryness of the lips.

Tincture of camphor is an old reliable remedy for prevention and relief of chapping of the lips. It should be applied every few hours, best with a camel's hair brush, and allowed to dry on the lip without rubbing. It leaves a thin protective coating film.

In case of chapping of the lips the lips crack, because of the constant movements of the lips, especially in the w. k. bla bla sex. When such a crack or fissure develops it should be carefully cleansed of any lipstick or salve that has been applied to the lips, then dried and painted with a cool, non-oily, camphor oil, so that the lip is held between the fingers so that the fissure is closed. Apply the colloidion up to the moist border of the lip. Of course it will not stick to the mucous membrane inside the vermilion. The colloidion dressing should be renewed as soon as it loosens. Usually it takes the crack to heal in a day or two.

Herpes ("cold sore") and sunburn are not uncommon causes of sore lips. The healing of raw spots (ulcers), fissures or cracks in such cases is best effected in the manner above described. Bear in mind that a man with a broken leg will get well so quickly as the insects in running around, racing or dancing the rumba. "Quiet, please" is a good motto for a lady with a lesion on her lip.

If you want a good lip salve, melt together one ounce of spermaceti (a kind of wax that separates from the oil of the sperm whale) and two ounces of sweet almond oil. Add one-half ounce of white wax (beeswax) in double boiler, remove from fire, and when cooled somewhat, stir in four drops of oil of rose geranium and a few drops of cochineal tint desired. The perfumes and coloring may be omitted if you want a plain white lip salve. Apply it as soon as it is made.

Experts are trying to determine the smallest number of words a man can make himself understood in English. Just two words are necessary: "Hell, no!"

No man and woman ever see things in quite the same way, says Dorothy Dix. But it doesn't take long for the woman to make the man see things her way.

News Behind the News

By PAUL MALLON.

STEPCHILD WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—There has been some whispering and planning about clearing up the White House standing of that democratic stepchild, Upton Sinclair, before California goes to the polls.

The whispering is among those who are high enough in the administration to plan its business.

They believe an erroneous public impression was created by President Roosevelt's first meeting with the epic Californian. They will even tell you off the record Mr. Roosevelt himself is restless about it.

The president's plan was to see Sinclair briefly at Hyde Park in the presence of two or three other persons. However, he was so charmed by the fluent Sinclair that the conference lasted an hour and a quarter, and later word came out that the meeting was "wonderful." The natural deduction was that Mr. Roosevelt wanted Mr. Sinclair elected. That impression was strengthened by the way Messrs. Farley, Hopkins et al took the newcomer into the fold.

POSSIBILITIES It would be exceedingly difficult for the White House now to change that idea, because Mr. Roosevelt must maintain the historic pose of taking no hand in local election contests.

But don't be surprised if some delicate means is found of correcting the misapprehension. For instance, if Mr. Roosevelt should be asked whether he intended to take part in the California situation, he could answer no. Then, if asked whether he would vote for Governor Lehman, he could answer yes. That might do the job.

Or it might be enough for Senator McAdoo or George Creel to say he is going fishing on election day in California. (Mr. Creel has been acting suspiciously as if he intended to come out against Mr. Sinclair openly.)

At any rate, keep your eyes open for something along this line.

CONGRESS Incidentally, the chiefs of the democratic command are not very much impressed with the caliber of men they expect to get out of the coming election. This does not refer to the large proportion of democratic congressional candidates, but to the few who spend much of their time thinking out little melodies and rhyming "home" and "own" tunes.

VERMONT The democrats at G. H. Q. heard only a few days ago that they had an excellent chance to accomplish the impossible by defeating republican Senator Austin in Vermont, where even the rocks have always been considered republicans.

As a result, there has been some cagey strategy developed and some money raised.

The money is being used to circulate through Vermont an 11-page booklet entitled, "What Austin Has Done for Vermont." The 11 succeeding pages, of course, are vacant. Not a single word adorns them.

It is not a new campaign trick. Some New Dealer was reading history and found it had first been done in Andrew Jackson's time, or thereabout.

ERRATA Investigation shows that President Harriman, of the chamber of commerce, was right the other day when he said he saw not a single newsmen after his conference with Mr. Roosevelt. That may help to clear up some of the misunderstandings.

Another recent error was the prophecy that McFadden's new political magazine would be out around the first of the year. It came out the very day the prophecy was published, which shows faster action than most columnar predictions.

Errors usually run in threes, but the third one has not yet developed.

AFTERMATH The Russians and Germans are having a little private verbal war of their own over who killed King Alexander. Each is trying to blame the other.

HAUPTMANN TRIAL IS SET FOR JAN. 2

Defense Asks Delay To Complete Preparations for Murder Trial.

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Oct. 24.—(AP)—Bruno Hauptmann will go on trial January 2 for the abduction-murder of the Lindbergh baby.

In the century-old courtroom where he will be tried, the Bronx carpenter was arraigned today before Supreme Court Justice Thomas W. Trenshard. In a clear and firm voice, he answered the indictment charging him with the induction of the criminal crime.

Justice Trenshard, gray-haired dean of the Jersey supreme court, fixed the trial date and Hauptmann was returned.

Old French Guillotine Auctioned for $1,980

PARIS, Oct. 24.—(UP)—The guillotine which was used during the French Revolution to behead 1,000 condemned nobles and bourgeois, was sold at public auction today for 30,000 francs ($1,980).

The machine, which is a heading machine to exhibit in a cafe near Tours, to attract trade. The guillotine has been kept for the past quarter of a century in the church of Saint Julien the Poor, near Notre Dame.

ed to cell No. 1 in the Hunterdon county jail 12 minutes ago. Shortly after the arraignment, County Prosecutor Anthony M. Hauck made public an affidavit in which Joseph M. Furcht, a construction superintendent, repudiated his previous assertion that Hauptmann worked the day of the kidnapping, March 1, 1932, on the Majestic Apartments in New York.

Furcht set forth that he previously said Hauptmann worked on the hotel project the day of the crime, saying he assumed Hauptmann reported for work immediately after obtaining a job on February 27 from an employment agency.

At the arraignment, Attorney-General George W. Wachtel told aid to the prosecution, "We will move to set November 14 as the date."

James M. Fawcett, defense attorney, quickly took the floor and argued against such an early trial.

"The earliest date that we can proceed to trial is December 11," Fawcett said. "I have various matters pending in New York and have not had sufficient opportunity to prepare this case and to proceed to trial at an earlier date."

"We feel," Wachtel replied, "that it is inappropriate to try the case during the Christmas Holidays. That would be unfair to the people of the county, the witnesses, the jurors and the court."

"We cannot consent to the suggestion of defense counsel but we would like to have a statement that three weeks is not sufficient time in which to prepare the case. Because of his statement, we feel that the earliest convenient date for both sides is January 2."

As Hauptmann, appearing emotionally, sat in his cell, the judge said, "That is not sufficient time in which to prepare the case. Because of his statement, we feel that the earliest convenient date for both sides is January 2."

He entered the jail unnoticed, and after Hauptmann was returned from his cell, talked to him for more than an hour.

The reason for the visit was not announced by authorities. It was learned, however, that Dr. Condon requested the interview. In New York, as far as known, "Infant" failed to identify Hauptmann as the mysterious "John" who received the $50,000 ransom money in a Bronx cemetery.

ADELA ROGERS HYLAND FILES DIVORCE SUIT

PUBLIC WORKS AID IS PRAISED BY DERN

War Secretary Says This Method Best for Relieving Unemployment.

Secretary of War Dern is making an inspection trip of public works projects on the Mississippi river where the federal government is spending millions of dollars improving navigation and insuring protection against floods. In this article he outlines some of the claimed indirect benefits for the improvement program.

By GEORGE H. DERN,
Secretary of War.

(written for the Associated Press)

Public works projects provide the best possible way to relieve unemployment and, by taking surplus labor off the market, have a far-reaching influence in overcoming the depression.

I do not think that there is any real direct relief in proffering direct relief. Direct relief is simply a means to keep people alive and waiting for something to turn up. Public works provide a wide distribution of employment at fair wages; start the wheels of industry going, and give us something of value for the money we spend there, and help to insure the permanent wealth of the country.

At the present time, for instance, we are employing 13,000 men on improvement projects on the upper Mississippi river, and it is estimated that an equal number are indirectly employed.

It is always interesting and illuminating to observe this indirect labor.

These projects require a great deal of reinforced concrete. All of the material for concrete must be shipped in, which means that there are men employed in quarries and in sand and gravel pits. It also means that men are being employed in cement plants; and the manufacture of cement requires the employment of men in the factories which produce the rock out of which cement is made, as well as men to get out the fuel burned in the plants.

The locks, gates, operating bridges and reinforcing require many trainmen in steel plants, iron mines, coal mines, cooking plants, limestone quarries, and hundred other places.

Howell Raps Limits Of Air Mail Statute

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—(AP)—The first public indication of new legislation the president's aviation commission may recommend was given today when Chairman Clark Howell Sr. expressed opposition to limitations set up by the Black-McKellar air mail law on the number of air mail contracts one firm may have.

Howell expressed his views in commenting on a plea by E. P. Querl of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, for amendment of the law to make possible the continued operation of both the transcontinental and Pacific coast routes by United Air Lines.

"I don't want to speak for the other members of the commission," Chairman Howell told Querl, "but speaking for myself, I think you are right."

United Air Lines service from San Diego to Seattle, and the transcontinental route from San Francisco, are both classified as "primary." After next March, the Black-McKellar act bars the company from continuing mail contracts on more than one primary or two secondary routes.

Wealth of U. S. and Foreign Stamps In Atlanta Society Auction Tonight

Hundreds of dollars of United States and foreign postage stamps will be auctioned off at the first fall postage stamp auction of the Atlanta Stamp Society tonight in the society's clubrooms in the Gould building at Five Points.

The auction will start promptly at 8 o'clock in room 306 with the United States section being offered first. The foreign section will follow immediately after.

Material for every type of collector has been entered from medium to fairly high-priced items, especially in the United States section. Here the collector can bid on elusive coils in fine condition, early 19th century singles, the later 19th century and 20th century commemoratives, air mails, and 5¢ and 10¢ postage values from early and recent issues. 1869 issue singles, and rare Confederates on cover, as well as many others. The United States collector will find much of interest in this section, with A. P. Francis, the Freeman brothers and Kar Pathé entering a wealth of material.

In the foreign section, while not so heavy as the United States and Confederate States issues, many attractive sets of air mails, commemoratives, singles of real value and other items from Latin America, Europe and the British Colonies will be found. The lots in the foreign section are for the most part medium-priced items as well as some of the cheaper stamps. There will be a few wholesale and packet lots as well as two complete sets for the beginner.

There will be a few medium collectors, one or two United States and one for foreign.

These will each consist of a catalog (specialized for United States), an album, a packet of worth-while stamps, hinges and tongs, all high-grade articles and desire by every collector.

The United States section will be in charge of A. P. Francis, as auctioneer and N. S. Noble will auction the foreign section. All interested in stamps and the general public are invited to attend this sale which will be conducted on the same high plane as the big New York auctions.

The lots will be put on the bulletin board for those who come tonight and desire to check over the auction list before or during the sale.

ADmiral MAY BE MADE MONARCH OF HUNGARY

VIENNA, Oct. 24.—(AP)—An apparent attempt to make Admiral Nicholas Horthy king of Hungary was described today in a special dispatch to the newspaper Stunde from Budapest.

The dispatch said the municipal council of the Zempen district petitioned parliament requesting royal powers be bestowed upon Horthy.

This suggestion, if followed by parliament, would rule out the Archduke Otto from the throne and might be a prelude to Horthy's wearing the thousand-year-old sacred crown of St. Stephen.

Although Horthy has the nominal title of regent, he already is the ruler of the nation.

MORE TEXTILE STRIKES FORESEEN BY GORMAN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—(AP)—The industrial truce recently proposed by President Roosevelt tonight appeared gravely menaced by threats of new labor outbreaks in the textile industry.

Francis J. Gorman, director of the textile strike which disrupted the industry a month ago, predicted a new wave of local strikes, chiefly in the south, within the next ten days. The emergency board of the United Textile Workers, he said, will meet in New York Friday to consider the situation.

While Gorman emphasized that the strikes would be local, with no possibility of another general walkout, he said the disruption undoubtedly would spread. He characterized the impending strikes as "designed to protect decent employers as well as workers."

Other Rumblings.

While the textile situation has become the first serious threat to the president's industrial peace program since his appeal for a truce, there have been undercurrents rumbling in the steel and automobile industries. Labor chieftains have been tense as a result of challenges of the "majority rule" principle by employers.

One challenge was made by Alfred P. Sloan Jr., president of the General Motors Corporation, in a letter to employees which asserted the company could not recognize the American Federation of Labor as speaking for all employees unless all belonged to the union. Another came from the American Iron & Steel Institute in a statement that steel workers stood behind employee representation plans.

Contending there was continued discrimination in the re-employment of workers who participated in the September strike, Gorman said this was the outstanding cause of the pending local walkouts. He added that in some cases feeling had been inflamed by eviction of union members from company homes.

His announcement came on the eve of a projected strike of 20,000 silk and rayon workers in the Paterson, N. J., area and automobile workers in Indianapolis, Indiana. He prepared to walk out on Monday.

Asserting that the situation was "extremely critical," Gorman said the emergency board Friday would act upon requests for strike sanction from "scores of local unions." He predicted that in most cases the board would approve the strikes and pledge the support of the national organization.

TVA Rate Engineer Shows Power Cost Cut

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 24.—(AP)—Edward F. Falck, rate engineer for the Tennessee Valley Authority, testified today results of the TVA's power operations at Athens, Ala., showed bills there had been lowered from 40 to 60 per cent, and the number of consumers had shown a corresponding increase.

His testimony was given in support of petition of the Alabama Power Co. for approval by the Alabama Public Service Commission of the sale of its properties in the Muscle Shoals area to the TVA.

Falck said the TVA analysis of the Athens area also showed a sizeable increase in the use of current per consumer since TVA rates were placed in effect.

He offered for the record in the case statistics on consumption of current at Athens and also at Tupelo, Miss., first of the cities in the Muscle Shoals region to install TVA power and TVA rates.

Falck followed James M. Barry, vice president and general manager of the Alabama Power Co., on the witness stand.

Little Vanderbilt Girl Questioned in Court

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Gloria Vanderbilt, 10-year-old heiress whose custody is being sought through courts by her mother, Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt, was questioned by Supreme Court Justice Edward P. Carver this afternoon to determine whether the child prefers as her guardian, her mother, or her aunt, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, with whom she is now staying.

The court's new move in bringing the child herself to court was undertaken with the strictest secrecy. The court adjourned 1½ hours yesterday and adjourned until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, but following the lunch hour all parties concerned returned to the courthouse through separate entrances and went directly to the justice's chambers.

32 PERSONS INJURED A CARS LEAVE RAILS

FOULKE, Ind., Oct. 24.—Thirty-two persons were injured, none seriously, early today as eight cars of the Cincinnati night express of the Big Four railroad were derailed a mile south of Earl Park, Ind.

The engine and five cars of the 13-car passenger train passed safely over the east end of the Earl Park switch, but then the rear part of the train, including coaches and Pullmans, left the rails, rolled along the ties and several cars turned over.

NEW HEAD OF BANKERS WAS BORN IN GERMANY

Came to United States in 1903 To Study American Methods.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Rudolph S. Hecht, chairman of the board of directors of the Hibernia National Bank of New Orleans, who was named president of the American Bankers' Association today, began his banking career in Europe.

He was born June 3, 1885, in Ansbach, Germany, and came to the United States in 1903 to study American banking methods.

He liked America so well he remained here, receiving supplemental education first in courses at the University of Chicago and the American Institute of Banking. In 1911 he became associated with the National Bank of Frankford, and two years later became assistant foreign exchange manager of the Commercial National Bank of Chicago.

In 1906 he came to New Orleans as assistant foreign exchange manager of the old Hibernia Bank & Trust Company, one of the financial pillars of the south. Successively he became bond officer, trust officer and vice-president.

In 1918, at the age of 33, he became president of the bank. Three years later he served as national president of the American Institute of Banking and three years later was elected president of the American Banking Association.

Throughout his career in New Orleans he has been active in a number of financial and commercial enterprises and in state and municipal agencies.

In 1932 he was elected president of the New Orleans Clearing House Association and a few weeks later President Hoover named him as a member of the Federal Reconstruction Corporation for Louisiana and Mississippi.

"Sinking" of Stomach Revealed as Actuality

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—(AP)—That "sinking feeling" in the pit of the stomach isn't just a figure of speech.

"Apprehension of mental shock causes the stomach to 'drop' and become 'flatter' in contour," Dr. A. C. Lovell, Northwestern University, Chicago, said tonight in an address before the New York Academy of Medicine.

"I personally have seen (by X-ray) the stomach of a student drop in response to a threat and rise again and resume motility on provoking laughter by passing the threat off as a joke."

PASSPORT FORGERY CHARGED TO GANG

WARSAW, Poland, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Police today arrested 100 persons suspected of being members of a huge passport-forger gang with branches in the large Polish cities as well as other centers.

The alleged leader of the gang, Moses Schiffman, died of a heart attack as he attempted to flee the raiders.

The police said the gang bought up old passports, used them to remove the information contained in them, and resold the documents to whoever paid sufficiently large prices.

Atlanta Honored By U. S. Bank Women

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Miss Susan B. Sturgis, assistant manager of the First National Bank of Boston, today was named president of the Association of Bank Women.

The post of assistant vice president went to Miss Anne Houston Sadler, assistant secretary of the Bank of Manhattan, New York.

Recent vice presidents elected included Miss Mabel D. Robson, south division, manager of the women's department, Atlanta, Ga., First National bank.

He was held in $5,000 bail for the grand jury.

LUTHERANS CLOSE SAVANNAH MEET

Columbus, Ohio, Gets '36 Session; Votes To Oppose Liquor Traffic.

By ROBERT BUNNELLER,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 24.—(AP)—Pledging itself to oppose the "insidious evils and dangers of the liquor traffic," the United Lutheran church in America voted yesterday at its annual convention today with a vote to meet in Columbus, Ohio, in 1936.

The church ordered the publication of educational literature on temperance and called upon all its educational agencies to co-operate in the movement. The step today completed action on a matter broached earlier in the convention.

Seeks World Peace.

The church reaffirmed resolutions to call upon the whole Christian church to seek world peace.

Action on the question of seating women delegates in the church councils and conventions was undertaken for the first time. The motion to defer followed heated debate when a report by a special committee declaring the seating of women is not "unscriptural," but pointing out that "all things lawful are not also expedient" was brought up for a second time before the convention.

For a time the debate threatened to put the convention in a snarl that would have delayed adjournment. The motion to defer action came from the Rev. E. Schmidt, of Chicago, with a suggestion that the question be studied further.

Dr. C. C. Hein, president of the American Lutheran church, offered the greetings of his church to the convention with resolutions urging steps in the direction of closer affiliations between the bodies. He declared that the "prime issue is mutual recognition and pulpits and altar fellowship." The convention here already had voted to take steps toward closer affiliations.

Dr. F. D. Knubel, president of the United Lutheran church in America, replying to Dr. Hein, declared that "the sufferings of the Christian church in a number of countries today will be relieved by mutual understanding" and urged unity in the quest of the Christians looking to this time. "It is necessary," he said, "that we join in a united fidelity to Christ and the Scriptures."

Dr. Hein defined as obstacles in the way of closer relationships the membership of some United Lutheran pastors in Masonic lodges and the practice of "commensalism" or joint ministerial fellowship. In his reply, Dr. Knubel told Dr. Hein, "We believe in the history and faith of your body without test and we ask you to be lieve in our past. Our Lutheranism is a faith that has been tried and tested and tested again."

The convention here has adopted resolutions directed to Chancellor Hitler protesting the "reported efforts of the leadership of the German reichskirche to force pastors of the German church into the service of a political program." The committee presenting them today said that the German communists had asked for copies of the protest it had been understood that a representative had wished copies in advance of passage.

Resolution Planned.

Dr. J. C. Mattes, of Scranton, Pa., announced that at the next convention he would present resolutions asking that the term of officers of the United Lutheran church in America be lengthened along with terms of editors of the church papers. A six-year instead of a two-year term was hinted at in the motion.

Other items of legislation today disclosed that 1,063 registered for the meeting here, approximately half of whom were delegates.

STATEWIDE PROGRAM FOR HEALTH IS URGED

ATHENS, GA., Oct. 24.—(AP)—Declaring typhus fever is assuming proportions of a serious public health menace in this section and malaria fever remains one of the state's major health problems, Dr. Allen H. Bunce, of Atlanta, tonight recommended a state-wide health program under direct control of the state board of health.

Addressing the Science Club, of the University of Georgia, Dr. Bunce termed the Ellis health law a "colossal mistake" which we consider the state as a whole."

The Atlanta doctor, who is editor of the Journal of the Medical Association of Georgia, said malaria could be controlled only by large community and section-wide activities. The disease was confined south Georgia, he said, until about five years ago, when it began to spread into Milton county, now a part of Fulton county, that many farmers "were forced to leave a good agricultural section to protect the health of their families."

Typhus fever, Dr. Bunce said, had been reported in the state for a dozen years at the rate of from 50 to 75 cases annually. However, during the past three years, it has spread rapidly to southwest Georgia. Careful studies have shown the virus is harbored by the large brown rat which carries the infection but itself does not suffer from the disease. Rat fleas are numerous on these animals and they transmit the disease to man, he said. The disease reported last year, however, half occurred in the state.

Harris proposed a thorough and complete revision of state loan laws to reduce legal rates of interest in Georgia.

He cited the recent supreme court decision in the case of Parsons vs. Fox, where it was held, he said, "that salary purchasing companies repeatedly buying salaries from the same person, and charging periodic fees, are in reality loan companies and are being run by the laws regulating interest rates."

Harris said he would propose a bill at the next meeting of the general assembly outlawing salary buying in all forms, and reducing interest on all types of loans to a maximum of 11-1/2 per cent per month.

NAME OF FARM PROJECT CHANGED TO PIEDMONT

MONTICELLO, Ga., Oct. 24.—(AP)—At the suggestion of Charles E. Pyron, director of the farm subsistence program, the name of the Chanceryville subsistence project in Putnam and Jasper counties has been changed to the Piedmont Homesteads, the local office of the program announced today.

E. L. Bankhead, project manager, said that cultivation of about 1,000 acres of land has begun, wheat and oats being planted. The first tractor has been put into use. Under the plan, units of 10 families will have the use of one tractor. However, Bankhead said, only one tractor has been received for cultivation and is presiding.

Rev. C. P. Watson is president of the fair association. J. A. Scoggins, vice president; O. J. Espy, secretary; B. W. Farrar, treasurer, and H. A. Ross, manager of exhibits. Mrs. O. A. Selman, Mrs. Henry Bradford, Mrs. J. L. McGinnis and Mrs. Walter Sturdivant are managers of the ladies' department.

2 GEORGIA BOYS NAMED "AMERICAN FARMERS"

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Fifty-eight boys from 33 states today held the degree of American farmer—the highest award given for vocational agricultural achievement.

The awards were announced at the national convention of the Future Farmers of America yesterday. The recipient of the highest award, Dr. C. K. Waller, of Plant City, Fla.; Dean Floyd, of Bowmen, Ga.; C. W. Grant Jr., of Lee's Summit, Mo., received the award.

Dean Paul W. Chapman, of the University of Georgia College of Agriculture, was named honorary American farmer.

A. M. E. CONFERENCE ON AT WRIGHTSVILLE

WRIGHTSVILLE, Ga., Oct. 24.—The A.M.E. conference of the church met in the Wrightsville A. M. E. church here to witness the installation of W. W. Williams as pastor. The conference, whose last feast was conducted by Rev. E. G. Harris, followed with the annual session. Dr. T. R. Talbert, of Atlanta, who directed the work of the Christian minister in world evangelism.

He said the death rate from typhus fever has decreased but still four times as great in Georgia as the average rate of other sections of the country.

The Ellis health law, passed by the legislature two years ago, gave county health units full-time health nurses.

"Yet after all this time," Dr. Bunce said, "only 30 counties in the entire state are availing themselves of the opportunities offered under the Ellis health law."

"The only solution for Georgia is a state-wide health program under direct control of the state board of health."

DR. ALF MACK DIES AT MACON HOSPITAL

MACON, Ga., Oct. 24.—(AP)—The organization of a state orchestra as a FERA project was agitated in a closed meeting of the executive board of the Georgia State Federation of Music Clubs here today.

The orchestra would be modeled somewhat after that in North Carolina which is supported by government funds. It was pointed out that the "best music would be taken to all parts of the state and at the same time unemployed musicians would be given work."

Macon was named again as the meeting place for the convention which will likely be held in March.

ROME MOTORCADE OPENS HIGHWAY

North Georgia All-Paved Road Dedicated and Extension Planned.

ROME, Ga., Oct. 24.—(AP)—Highway enthusiasts gathered here today to celebrate the completion of a paved highway between Rome and Chattanooga and launch a plan for a federal numbered highway through west Georgia to Florida.

Barry Wright, Rome attorney, addressing the 250 persons who joined the celebration, recalled the organization of the old Dixie Highway Association and the accomplishments of the great road groups of a score of years ago.

"Let us dedicate this meeting to further accomplishment," he said, and proposed that every effort be made to get the federal route No. 27, from Cincinnati to Chattanooga, extended through Rome along state highway No. 1 to Tallahassee, Fla., as a short route from the north and west through Georgia.

John Heck, a member of the state highway board, said the entire board was interested in the project and promised he would "try to give you most of what you want most of the time."

The meeting was held at the Caicos Country Club following the arrival of a motorcade from Chattanooga.

Representatives of Roman civic organizations went to Chattanooga today to join the Chattanooga group.

The Lindale band joined the "leads" at LaFayette and the procession was swelled along the route by delegations from south of Rome attended the meeting.

Representatives from Colartown, Buchanan, Carrollton and LaGrange from south of Rome attended the meeting.

VALDOSTA, Ga., Oct. 24.—William Wardlaw, of Atlanta, was speaker at the luncheon of the Rotary Club today.

Wardlaw spoke in the interest of the Masonic order, which he said was telling in a very convincing way the work which is being done by that institution.

Other speakers at the barbecue included: Dick Clark, of the Chattanooga Chamber of Commerce; Harry Miller, president of the Chattanooga Retail Merchants' Association; John Lovell, of the Chattanooga Hotel Men's Association; Wesley Shropshire of Summerville; Earl Wood, secretary of the Chattanooga Chamber of Commerce; J. R. Parker, county attorney of Trounc county; Charles Parker, of the Trounc county board of commissioners; W. O. Strickland, of Buchanan; M. Brumby, of Cedartown; Chairman Woodman, of the Polk county commissioners; Ed Hall, of Walker county, and Dick Park, convention secretary of the Chattanooga Chamber of Commerce.

CHANGES IN LOAN LAW URGED BY ROY HARRIS

AUGUSTA, Ga., Oct. 24.—(AP)—Roy V. Harris, attorney and legislator, today said he would ask for early trial in city court of two local companies and three individuals under grand jury indictments charging usury.

Harris proposed a thorough and complete revision of state loan laws to reduce legal rates of interest in Georgia.

He cited the recent supreme court decision in the case of Parsons vs. Fox, where it was held, he said, "that salary purchasing companies repeatedly buying salaries from the same person, and charging periodic fees, are in reality loan companies and are being run by the laws regulating interest rates."

Harris said he would propose a bill at the next meeting of the general assembly outlawing salary buying in all forms, and reducing interest on all types of loans to a maximum of 11-1/2 per cent per month.

Fair at Summerville Opens Gates Today

SUMMERVILLE, Ga., Oct. 24.—The annual county fair will be held here Thursday and Friday in the baseball park at the Summerville High school and the Sturdivan gymnasium. Better premiums than ever are being offered in every department, it is said, and prospects are that the 1934 fair will be one of the best ever held.

The defense objected to the state attempting to put into the record a statement concerning between Groover and his wife in which she said he would not "touch" the books of the association. The state charged it portrayed his frame of mind but after lengthy arguments state's attorneys decided to defer introduction of the testimony pending a study by Judge W. E. Thomas of its admissibility.

Saw Luke at Funeral.

Mrs. Groover said she saw Judge Luke on the day of her husband's funeral.

"I went to his home to see him, he apparently was in a highly nervous state. He said he was in so much trouble and Oscar was the only one who could help him and he was dead."

"I asked him if I could go to the office of the Georgia State's attorney and he said 'yes.' I went there the following morning and I turned over to the receiver papers I found belonging to the association."

Special Prosecutor Scott Russell, of Macon, said:

"How long had they been friends, the judge and Mr. Groover?"

"Since childhood," Judge Luke and Mr. Groover replied together.

"Has Judge Luke ever been to see you since Mr. Groover was buried?"

"No, sir," he said he accidentally killed the best friend he had in the world and kept repeating this. He acted hysterically and said "See if there is another shell in the gun and if there is I'll shoot myself."

"Did he make any effort to take the gun away from you?" asked Russell.

"No, sir."

Under cross-examination Cobb said the trigger of the gun "works a little hard" but said the lack of oil for a few months might account for that.

He testified that $277,442 was paid out of the association to Judge Luke, members of his family and firms in which he was interested during a five-year period.

During the same time, Chisholm said, persons other than Luke and his connection received about $150,000.

Deposits Withdrawn.

A number of people who had deposited with them on occasion, didn't they? Lee Branch, of defense counsel, asked.

"Yes."

Illustrating the point Branch asked if a person had $5,000 or $20,000 or $100,000.

"Yes," said Chisholm, "but some who had money in the association never got it back."

His testimony drew laughter from the courtroom.

On redirect examination Chisholm said he tried for 18 months "the best he knew how" to get out money deposited for an estate he represented, but failed.

"You testified a while ago that others withdrew $150,000, why couldn't you get a withdrawal?" Lee Branch, of defense counsel, asked.

"I don't know. I reckon I wasn't one of the chosen children," Chisholm replied as the spectators again laughed.

The state also called Mrs. J. L. Groover, daughter-in-law of the dead man, who said Luke went to the Groover home three times on the Sunday of the slaying to see Groover. She said she and Mrs. Groover were in Tallahassee the night Groover was killed.

I. Groover said he saw Luke three times at the Groover home that day.

R. W. Wehterling, who lives across the street from the place Groover was shot, said he saw Luke and Groover before his house at the offices of the loan association about 8:30 a.m.

The left went to a nearby restaurant and were talking later as they started to enter Luke's car, a light truck.

"Mr. Groover got into the right side of the car," he testified. "Luke talked to him a little bit and then walked around to get in the car on the steering-wheel side. Judge Luke leaned into the bottom of the car, leaned down, raised up and I saw the flash of a pistol and heard the report."

Crowd Gathered.

"At this time Judge Luke had one foot on the pavement and one on the running board. I went down there. A crowd had gathered."

"Did you hear Judge Luke say anything?"

"Yes, he told a policeman 'Hand me that gun, I'm going to kill myself.'

Under cross-examination he said there was a street light over the car and "I especially watched Luke and Groover because I had some money with me."

Groover was shot in the head.

Omar Caldwell, who said he passed the scene just at the time the shooting occurred, testified "Luke and Groover seemed to be in a good humor."

"What did Luke say?" Russell asked.

"He said 'This gun went off and I

Southern Pine Newsprint Answer To Price Rise Threat, Says Herty

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 24.—(AP)—Dr. Charles H. Herty today warned newsprint manufacturers that the sound was ready to put out five times as much paper as was annually consumed in the world at a great reduction in price and with a tensile strength many times greater than now required by the most modern newspaper press.

Dr. Herty, who has been experimenting with Georgia pine for several years, said his research work was complete and "simple economics is going to settle this matter eventually."

Several southern daily papers and numerous weeklies have run off special editions on newsprint from southern pine and found it satisfactory.

Dr. Herty's statement today was in connection with the action of the Canadian Pacific and Quebec and Peter Mitchell, Hepburn of Ontario, in declaring that as an economic necessity Canadian mills, from which much of the American supply comes, must no longer sell at the 1934 price of $40 and $41 a ton.

"What more striking need of economic independence on so vital a matter as newsprint than is this threat to withhold two-thirds of the newsprint to be used by the newspapers of the United States?" Dr. Herty said.

The situation which arose in a country which is annually growing in its southern states, but at present not using, five and a half times as much high-grade raw material for paper making in all its forms as the whole world annually consumes, to say nothing of the enormous cordage of pine now standing."

Miss Flournoy and Mr. Huff Wed At Brilliant Rites in Columbus

COLUMBUS, Ga., Oct. 24.—A wedding of social importance throughout the south was that of Miss Helen Flournoy, daughter of Josiah Flournoy, and James Blanchard Huff Jr., which was solemnized at high noon today at St. Paul Methodist church. The Rev. J. E. Ellis, pastor of the church, officiated.

The picturesquely little church was new, built with its decorations of woodwork, fern and statuary palms and pedestal busts holding cluster of Easter lilies.

The ushers were Robert Parish III, Russell Newton, Joe Flournoy and John Nesbit of Atlanta. The groomsmen were James Harris, Atlanta; Robert Beaman, Fred Dismuke and William Swift.

The bridesmaids included Mrs. William Barnett, Jacksonville, Fla.; Mrs. Edward W. Swift Jr., Mrs. John Clarkson, Miss Frances Dixon. Their gowns were of bronze green velvet fashioned with velvet jackets and worn with hats and gloves to match. They carried cascade bouquets of dahlias in shades of brown and tan.

Mrs. James Nafelt, of Auburn, maid of honor, wore a gown similar to those worn by the maids. Her flowers were also dahlias arranged in cascade form without foliage.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, Josiah Flournoy. Henry Watson Jr. was the bridegroom's best man. The patrician beauty of the bridegroom was enhanced by her wedding gown, which was worn by her great-aunt, Mrs. Maude Reynolds McLoone. Of heavy cream faille, the gown matched the deep cream of the rose point lace with which it was trimmed. The full skirt opened down the front to reveal a wide panel of passementerie and seed pearls embroidered in floral design, and was finished with a wide lace border. The train was cut in square scallops and edged with pleated ruffles of the lace. A cap of rose point lace, finished with seed pearls, held in place the veil of cream illusion edged with the lace. The veil, worn by her cousin, Mrs. William Williamson, of Charlotte, was in cape-like tiers. The bride's costume was completed by a bouquet of valerian blue arranged in cascade effect.

Immediately following the ceremony Mr. Flournoy entertained with a wedding breakfast at his home, Wildwood. The guests were received by Mr. Flournoy, Mr. Huff and his bride, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Huff, parents of the groom and the wedding party. Assisting in receiving were the bride's mother, Mrs. Minnie Roberts McLoone; Miss Mary Hanna Flournoy, Mrs. W. L. Cooke, Mrs. Frank Roberts, of Macon; Mrs. Marshall Bell, Dot Calloway, Dot DeKlynne, Frances Holliman, Esther Richardson, Frances Miller, Mrs. Betty Zuber, Baba Zahra, Catherine DeWitt, Lillian Brown, Dot Harris, Helen Aycock, Charlotte Sage, Nancy Jones, Marion Walker, Cundell Smith, Eleanor Milkinson, Emily Evans, Libby Clay, Edna Miller, Louise McKie, Marjorie Hanes and Mary Kerr.

Always remember that the discipline of the little ones is no business of yours, that even if it were, you could not possibly undo the damage already done by the parents. And remember, too, that if you win the affection and loyalty of the children you have done more to establish yourself in the good graces of the parents than you could do in any other conceivable way.

"He that meddleth with another's strife is like one that taketh a dog by the ears," so said the wise one. The call of the blood is strong. It is perfectly natural for a sister or close kinswoman to feel the impulse to rush to the defense of the wife or to have an alteration with her husband. Never yield to the impulse to take sides with the sister against the brother-in-law. Rather do as a wily mother-in-law who says that she has made it a matter of principle to throw her weight on the side of the son-in-law, again her own daughter when there is a disagreement between them. This don't fool the in-law but it makes him feel comfortable.

Give the family some privacy. Even if you have to go hungry, let them sit down to their dinner table occasionally without you. Let them go to bed early, and if you can't bear it that you are not always at the back seat of the car when it goes out the driveway. Make a habit of going to your room in the evening after the children are put to bed, so your sister and her husband can have some private conversation. Offer to stay at home with the children while the father and mother go out to the movie or to see friends.

If there are servants, don't be tempted to take liberties with them, to ask special favors of them. Press your own dress, run your own errands, do your own chores. The work was laid out for the servants without reference to you. Your husband's wife on your part is likely to disrupt the affairs of the household. Servants are quick to sense the crux of a situation and are ready to rebel at what they consider unwarranted assumption of authority over them.

Lillian Mae Patterns

DIAGONAL LINES FOR SLENDERNESS AND CHARM.

Pattern 2054.

Button trims, as you probably know, is one of the most important trends in the style notes of the season.

Where could it be used to better advantage than to set off the unusual lines of this smartly tailored afternoon dress? The raglan sleeves are as fashionable as they are comfortable and for these we prefer them short sleeves are indicated in the pattern. Although the scarf collar tied high beneath the chin certainly gives the frock a spirited air, the dress may be made with a simply rounded neckline. And notice the slenderizing effect of the diagonal motif which is repeated in the seam across the front of the skirt.

Pattern 2054 is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 takes 2 1/2 yards 54-inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send 15 cents in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this Lillian Mae pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. Be sure to state size.

AROUND LOCAL CONTRACT TABLES

STATE TOURNAMENT HERE.

At 1:30 o'clock Friday afternoon the first round of this competition will be held at the Piedmont hotel to start play in the first Georgia State contract championship ever held under the sponsorship of the United States Bridge Association.

At this writing the Cavendish Club, under whose direction the tournament will be held, states that there are 39 entries already in. By post time Friday there will likely be 40 and 50.

It is probable that the entry list will be so large that there will be a qualifying round in both the pair championship, which will be held Friday and Saturday afternoon, and the team-of-four, which will be staged the evenings of those days.

Should the pair event not exceed 36, there will be no qualifying round but scores made in both sessions will be combined.

If, as seems probable, there will be a qualifying round, the qualifiers will likely carry into the final session a certain per cent of the score made in the qualifying round. This method gives an incentive to turn in as high a score as possible in the qualifying round and will reward the makers of these scores.

At the present writing it seems highly probable that there will be about a dozen teams in the team-of-four championship, the blue ribbon event of the tournament. As any number over eight will necessitate a qualifying round, it is possible that we will be one in this event. Board-a-match will be the medium of scoring in this qualifying round.

After the qualifying round, which will reduce the field to eight teams, the knock-out system with accumulative scoring will be used.

Handsome championship cups, given by Paines, will be the prizes.

On the evenings of November 22, 23 and 24, 1934, this poster was sent to Savannah to compete in the state contest.

At the present time, Miss Kathleen Pierson, student at the High Museum of Art, is the holder of the title of Miss Georgia.

District Presidents' Council Planned By State Federation of Women's Clubs

By Bessie S. Stafford, Editor of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs. The board of directors of the state's district presidents' council preceded the October meeting of the executive board of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs held on Wednesday at the Henry Gray hotel in Atlanta. Mrs. T. O. Tabor Jr., of Elberton, was elected chairman of the council, the organization meeting being presided over by Mrs. H. B. Ritchie, of Athens, president of Georgia Federation. Composing this council are presidents of the 10 districts in the following order: First, Mrs. R. H. Ginder, of Clayton; second, Mrs. A. B. Conger, of Bainbridge; third, Mrs. Ivey Melton, of Dawson; fourth, Mrs. J. A. Corry, of Barnesville; fifth, Mrs. P. J. McEvoy, of Avondale Estates; sixth, Mrs. L. I. Wexelbaum, of Macon; seventh, Mrs. W. A. Hill, of Calhoun; eighth, Mrs. G. D. Dickson, of Homerville; ninth, Mrs. John Braswell, of Braselton; tenth, Mrs. T. O. Tabor, of Elberton.

Members of the council will expend every effort to co-ordinate and unify the program and activities of chairman in club, districts, and the state, frequent consultations and group meetings at state conventions and councils, for discussion of problems and plans. The council will recommend to reaffirm and stress the resolution having already been passed by Georgia Federation relative to increased support of public welfare, as well as the resolutions expressing concern for care of dependent and dependent children and those seeking a greater protection of public health.

Tallulah Falls School Day. Board members voted to designate Oct. 26, 1934, as "Tallulah Falls School Day," upon which date every club in the state will sponsor a benefit to be given for the school in observation of the silver jubilee celebration. Mrs. Price Smith, of Atlanta, state chairman of gift scholarships, reported that $5,000 have been given boys and girls, deemed as a magnificent piece of work accomplished by Mrs. Smith. Mrs. Charles J. Haden, of Atlanta, stated that the student foundation fund of Georgia Federation, the largest ever set aside for education, is of Colorado. Mrs. Haden is the able state chairman of this educational work, and Mrs. E. K. Large, of Atlanta, is the efficient executive secretary. Mrs. Albert Hill, of Greenville, vice-president-large of the state, analyzed the work which has joined the federation since the clubs closed in April, 1934, and requested a renewal of enthusiasm and endeavor, and a higher percentage for increased membership, other than 15 per cent goal of last year.

Mrs. Ritchie's Message. Mrs. Ritchie, after giving her first message to board members since her election last April to the presidency of the state federation, visualized the function of an executive board as a medium through which to give careful consideration of business items, the study of problems coming before the body, and the promotion of its ideals in keeping with its ideals of unselfish service. The full text of her message will be published upon the official club page in The Atlanta Constitution. Mrs. J. W. Ghoshan, of Conyers, director for Georgia in General Federation, urged the following up of the resolutions already adopted by General and Georgia Federations of Women's Clubs, including pure food and drugs, unemployment insurance and old age pensions, temperance education, crime control, and women's equal rights amendment.

Recommendation was made that the home economics funds of the federation be placed in the general fund of the student aid foundation, and be administered with no other restrictions than those which govern the general fund. This recommendation was presented to the board because conditions change so rapidly, that a policy which is wisely undertaken at one time may meet the needs of girls in succeeding years. The girl and not the school has always been the unit in student aid foundation.

During luncheon Paris Lee, well-known and talented member of the Second Ponce de Leon Baptist church, accompanied at the piano by his gifted wife, rendered several songs. He possesses a magnificent baritone voice, and is a member of the Atlanta Philharmonic Club. The tables were decorated with roses holding white chrysanthemums and silver candleabra held white tapers. Mrs. H. H. Tift, of Tifton, gave the invocation.

Attending the meeting were Mrs. H. B. Ritchie, Athens, state president; Mrs. A. B. Conger, Bainbridge, second at large; Mrs. A. B. Conger, Bainbridge, second vice president; Mrs. Morris Bryan, Jefferson, recording secretary; Mrs. Rufus Turner, Athens, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Ralph Butler, Dallas, state treasurer; Mrs. Howard McCall, Atlanta, parliamentarian; Mrs. J. W. Ghoshan, Conyers, director for Georgia; Mrs. Bix Stafford, Atlanta, state editor; Mrs. Harry Jordan, Atlanta, executive secretary.

District Presidents. Second district, Mrs. A. B. Conger, Bainbridge; third district, Mrs. Ivey Melton, Dawson; fourth district, Mrs. R. M. Mobley, Covington, vice president; fifth district, Mrs. P. J. McEvoy, Avondale Estates; sixth district, Mrs. E. K. Large, Atlanta; seventh district, Mrs. W. A. Hill, Calhoun; eighth district, Mrs. G. D. Dickson, Homerville; ninth district, Mrs. John Braswell, Braselton; tenth district, Mrs. T. O. Tabor, Elberton.

Mrs. Charles J. Haden, chairman student aid, Atlanta. Mrs. E. K. Large, secretary student aid, Atlanta. Mrs. Irving Gresham and Mrs. E. M. Helbig, secretary student aid, Atlanta. Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Chapman, Eliza White foundation, Mrs. H. H. Tift, director for life, Tifton. Mrs. R. K. Rambo, director for life, Atlanta. Mrs. Price Smith, director for life, Atlanta. Mrs. John K. Ottley, Atlanta. Chairman, Mrs. E. M. Bailey, Acworth. Mrs. M. D. Dickerson, Douglas. Mrs. C. E. Pittman, Cumming. Mrs. W. H. Oliver, Dalton. Mrs. Miss Emily Clegg, Athens. Mrs. Frances Vaughan, Cartersville. Mrs. Lena Felker Lewis, Monroe. Mrs. R. H. McKinney, Fitzgerald. Mrs. Katherine Doger, Gainesville. Mrs. L. C. Waltrip, Tallapoosa. Mrs. John Boston, Marietta. Mrs. A. S. Hardy, Gainesville. Mrs. Andrew Sparks, Milton. Mrs. H. H. Franklin, Townsite.

Tech Hampered in Scrimmage by Absence of Six Regulars

PURPLES FACE POETS TONIGHT AT BALL PARK

Real Battle Looms When Old Rivals Clash.
Kickoff at 7:45.

By Roy White.

Boys' High and Lanier High two of the state's leading prep teams, will meet in their annual battle at 7:45 o'clock tonight at Ponce de Leon park in one of the feature prep games of the week. Tech High and Charlotte High will meet at 8 o'clock Friday night at Ponce de Leon park. Decatur faces Commercial Friday night at Decatur.

Tonight's game will move both Boys' High and Lanier step up to the Georgia Interscholastic Athletic Association championships. Boys' High is one of the chief contenders in the northern division and Lanier is battling its way to the top in the southern division.

Boys' High will present its strongest lineup of the year tonight, for J. Carlisle Smith, the triple-threat star, will be back in uniform. He was the state's prep passer and punter last year, but suffered a side injury early this season and has not played in a single game. He was in uniform last week for the first time, and will be ready for tonight's game. It is likely that he will be held out of the starting lineup.

STEPHENS OUT.

Harry Stephens, a track star, who suffered from a bad cold, suffered an attack of influenza recently and has been advised to give up football for the remainder of the year. He has been working out with some of the team, but will not be able to play to-night.

Other members of the squad are in excellent shape and ready for a hard game. Jimmy Bras, alternate captain, is back in good shape.

Tonight's game will be the tenth for the teams in recent years, with Lanier holding the edge with four victories against two for the Purple. Three games have resulted in ties. Lanier holds a decided advantage in scoring, with 85 points against 31 for Boys' High.

Smithies Meet Work Today.

Tech High will end its hard work this afternoon in preparation for Friday night's game with Charlotte. It will be homecoming for Tech High and one of the largest crowds of the season is expected to be present.

Decatur Meets Typists Friday.

Decatur High and Commercial will battle for one of the top positions in the North Georgia Interscholastic Conference standings Friday night at Decatur.

PETRELS PLAN AERIAL ATTACK AGAINST HOWARD

Kicking To Play Impor-tant Part in Game at Hermance.

By Jack Troy.

The Flying Concessions, of the circus, and the Oglethorpe backfield—very good exhibitionists they are indeed. And all the time they are showing the whirling and dipping as displayed by the great Concessions for the Stormy Petrels to get anywhere with their spinners, reverses and other tricky maneuvers against Howard College here Saturday.

Oglethorpe is very likely to emullate the Flying Concessions Saturday and take the field in a very daring fashion. The Petrels certainly can't become graceful young men of the flying trapeze, but they will employ an offense that will go something like pass-pass-pass—kick-kick-kick—pass-

What was good enough for Oglethorpe is good enough for Harry Coaches John Patrick and Harry Wren, mainstays Stars and on Alman's in the type of Howard forward wall that struck with brass-knuckle meanness. So Alabama, which is undoubtedly the best football team in the south today, took to the air to beat the Bulldogs.

NO DISSECTION PLANNED.

Since Mississippi and Mississippi State both have pretty fair forward walls, and since Howard managers are not up to snuff, both the Petrel coaches are expecting to take the Howard line apart and see what makes it tick Saturday.

Oglethorpe has one great combative instrument to test the strength of the Howard line. This being Captain Frank Mittrich, a ripping, tearing smashing, thundering fullback. Mittrich is figured as the only back who can do anything with the Bulldog forwards.

Oglethorpe has a few injuries. Ed Massey, center, and Sully Sullivan, Bill Reynolds and Sam Leslie, halfbacks, have ankle and knee injuries among them. All four of them will be ready to play Saturday, however.

Small Howard end, is very con-sistent punter. His efforts are good for most of the time. He has been fortunate in having plenty of time to get off his kicks because the Howard line has been on the blocks.

TWO GOOD KICKERS.

Oglethorpe, however, has two pretty fair punters who probably can match him. They are Belton Clark and Jack Puryear, who alternate at quarterback.

In Puryear the Petrels have a player in the imagery of Tech's Shorty Roberts. A young fellow who can snatch those punts out of the air and fetch them back, so to speak.

Puryear has an injured ankle and never had much of a chance. But he will be in shape for Howard. And if the Bulldog fail to keep eleven pairs of eyes glued on him on the pitch the spectators are as apt as not to see a kick run back for a touchdown.

Puryear is that kind of a fellow. He'd break the Bulldogs' heart just for the sake of giving the spectators their full money's worth.

The Petrels were kept at work until dark again yesterday. Defense was strong and a few new plays polished. There was a lot of passing and kicking.

Oglethorpe will be strong for the passing and kicking game Saturday. And don't overlook Oglethorpe's line. Auburn couldn't do anything with it and resorted to passes and wide sweeps to gain ground.

Here is a game in which the breaks likely will figure strongly in the final analysis. Howard may have an edge with respect to stronger line reserves. But Oglethorpe has the better offense.

At any rate, Saturday's game at Hermance field, with the Petrels out after their fifth victory of the season, will be well worth the ride. Tickets are on sale at Marshall & Reynolds in the Flatiron building. They are going at $1 per copy.

The Tri-State Construction Company team, of the Capital City Duckpin League, seemed to be inspired as they amassed some big games in the match with the Southeastern Brewing Company Wednesday—winning two of the games and losing the final by 19 pins.

Also in amassing a big 528 in the first game, the Tri-State Construction Company won the speed award of a case of Old South beer last night. Smith and Knight were the big scorers in the final game, with 123 each.

Norris Candy Company won two games from Southern Freight Tariff Bureau; Atlanta Paper Company won two games from Excelsior Laundry; Fox Manufacturing Company won two games from Graybar Electric Company.

Well's had the high three game total of 336; Chopin had the high game of 128; Battle had second high game of 124.

Dr. Robert Burns, of the Peachtree Christian church, joined a group of young men from the congregation in a bowling contest Wednesday evening and made some very good scores. Dr. Burns is very popular with the young people and will, more than likely, be a regular attendant with the bowling party each Wednesday.

The Peachtree Club of the Peachtree Christian is making a splendid showing in the Bible Class and Sunday School Duckpin League, and most of the players in the contest last night were practicing, in order to improve their bowling for the league games.

Included in the list of players from this group were Anderson, Thornton, Spiers, Johnson, Stokes, Williamson, Jackson, Snow, Reid and Williams.

The twelve team Bell System League bowls tonight, beginning at 7:30 o'clock. The handicap system is making the race for leadership a most exciting one.

Georgia Plant and Equipment Engineers, Maintenance Engineers vs. Atlanta Main, Atlanta, Walnut vs. District Maintenance, Traffic vs. Western Electric Company, Accounting vs. A. T. & T. Company, Plant Engineers vs. General Plants will be scheduled this evening.

The Power Club Ladies' League, Live Wires play the Circuit Breakers; Dynamos and Kilowatts are opponents.

In the men's league of the Power Club, Transportation bowls Sales; Lighting vs. Operating; Distribution vs. Accounting. Games begin at 7:30 o'clock.

JESSE MORGAN TRIED AT GUARD FOR BULLDOGS

Cordell Also Shifted as Georgia Seeks Strength for Alabama.

By Bill Ray.

ATHENS, Ga., Oct. 24.—Coach Mehre sent the Georgia Bulldogs through a long defensive and short offensive work out here this afternoon with the coaches concentrating for the most part on the revamped backfield lineup and weakened guard positions.

Jesse Morgan, tackle, was shifted to guard today as Coach Mehre tried different combinations to replace the veteran Dave "Butch" McCullough, Atlanta, who fractured his forearm in the Tulane game. Lew Cordell, and had been shifted to guard Tuesday.

The addition of Morgan and Cordell strengthens the center of the line, but the absence of the veteran McCullough will be noticeable when the team goes up against the Alabama Crimson Tide Saturday. Frank Johnson and John Brown are the veterans guards uninjured with Sandy Daniels, Don Leeburn, George MacDaniel, and W. A. Law, reserves. Law, however, is definitely out of the game with a sprained knee.

BACKFIELD.

For the renovated backfield, Coach Mehre has been working Maurice Green, sophomore fullback; Paul Causey, sophomore left half; Al Morris, right half, and Charlie Treadwell, reserve quarter. This backfield clicked fairly well this afternoon on the short offensive drill, with Gause scoring one touchdown over the frosh line.

Maurice Green, the fullback from El Paso, Texas, was looking like a triple-threat back this afternoon as he passed, kicked and carried the ball with equal ability. Green's running has been his best asset, but he is not the blond Texan who struts along with a deadly fury today. He also kicked two points after touchdown.

When the starting offensive team was vari ed by Coach Mehre, Alf Anderson, Decatur left half, showed his hips to the frosh tacklers and scored two touchdowns. Anderson's running has been his best asset, but he is not the blond Texan who struts along with a deadly fury today. He also kicked two points after touchdown.

Against Alabama plays the defensive team looked fairly efficient but the speed and deception of the spinners, fakes, and end-around-end runs that the Tide men used had the varsity guessing.

BOND AND GRANT.

John Bond and Alf Grant, the injured backs from the sides, started most of the plays from the sidelines although Bond got in the defensive drill for a few moments with the instruction "just look them over and don't make any tackles." Both Bond and Grant have shoulder injuries.

Coach Mehre was taking special pains with the guards as they worked on the line. The Guardsmen, Grant and Morgan, and Cordell, the two shifted players, a great deal, he stressed defensive form. John Brown, who received a broken nose in the Tulane game, was working with the guards, his nose protected with a special guard.

The defensive plays of the entire team were modeled after the attack of the Georgia coaches. The ends worked against the frosh backs, while the varsity backfield perfected their pass defense.

'Kingfish' Long Leads L. S. U. Invasion of Nashville for Game

SENATOR PAYS STUDENTS' WAY TO TIGER GAME

Plans Colorful Demonstration at Game; Tigers Are Favored.

By Kenneth Gregory,

Associated Press Sports Writer.

Glorified by the presence of Kingfish Huey Long, the cadet corps and band of Louisiana State University, and of the parades, shows of the season, is anticipated when the undefeated L. S. U. Tigers and Vanderbilt clash on Dudley field at Nashville Saturday afternoon.

Senator Long, the ace of Louisiana politics and an ardent supporter of the Baton Rouge school plans to storm into Nashville with the cadets, put on pre-game drills and lead the band between the two halves. He'll probably have his hand in everything that goes on, except the game itself.

The whole plan was Huey's own idea, and he's defraying all the expenses for the band and the cadets. Any other students who are short on funds are getting "loans" from the Kingfish, who promised to give Nashville a real football crowd when Vanderbilt visited Baton Rouge last fall.

TIGERS FAVERED.

As for the game, the Louisianians will go into the battle armed and ready to beat the Commodores, but it's very likely the decision will be close. Vanderbilt was barely able to win over Auburn in its last appearance, while L. S. U. easily trounced the Plainsmen in marking up its initial Southern conference victory.

"Don't let the score of the Auburn game fool you about the strength of Vanderbilt," said Bert Langford, Tiger coach, who seconded the Commodores. "Vanderbilt is a much better club than they looked against Auburn. I believe they tried to get by as light as possible in order to be ready for L. S. U. And don't forget that last year on the Saturday before meeting us Vandy was tied by Mississippi State only to come back and battle us to a standstill, 7 to 7."

Aside from the outstanding Southeastern duel, four other conference combats are on the card as well as two important inter-loop contests with the Southern conference.

BAMA AND GEORGIA.

Alabama and Georgia renew one of the oldest of southern rivalries at Birmingham, their series dating back to 1895. The Crimson Tide holds an edge over the Bulldogs, winning 11 games to the latter's 10, while three ended in ties.

The Tuscaloosa eleven, defending its 1933 Southeastern crown, probably will rule a slight favorite over the boys from Athens, but Georgia's great comeback against Tulane last Saturday and its greatly improved attack have caused Alabama coaches to fear they might hit the Bulldogs at their best.

Increasing momentum power with every game, Auburn's flashy sophomore morses his way to Lexington to tackle Kentucky's Wildcats in the latter's conference debut. The Plainsmen have dropped three successive contests, all against formidable contenders, but have been impressive in every game, especially the one with Vanderbilt.

Georgia Tech invades New Orleans to play Tulane and Ole Miss goes to Oxford to begin Mississippi's six conference tilts. Mississippi State faces Mississippi College of the Dixie conference at Starkville Friday night.

VOLS MEET DEVILS.

The inter-conference program is headed by the Tennessee-Duke battle at Knoxville, a game that probably will produce as much if not more action than any other on the Dixie slate. The Blue Devils will be favored, but the Volunteers always have been tough customers for the Durham crew, and anything might happen.

Florida faces Georgia Tech again, Maryland at Baltimore, with the dopests predicting that the Old Liners will avenge their loss to the Gators last year. Encouraged, however, by their 14-to-0 triumph over Hunk Anderson's North Carolina State gridlers, Florida coaches believe their team will be defeated just as good as Maryland.

The Dixie conference card calls for one intra-loop game between Southwestern (Tenn.) and Chattanooga at Chattanooga, while several important trays are on the S. I. A. A. program, including Furman and Centre at Greenville, S. C., and Stetson and Mercer at Jacksonville. Milligan plays Mountain Teachers at Hatfieldburg Friday.

ALMAND MEETS INDIAN TONIGHT

John Almand, Atlanta wrestler, will meet Chippewa Charlie Indian in the main event at the Lakewood Heights arena tonight.

When these two wrestlers met last fall, after he had beaten the Indian by a broomstick. However, Almand claims that he will get just as rough as the Indian this time.

Red Dugan, Chattanooga, will meet Glenn Cowan, the Atlanta policeman, in the semi-final match. This match will be a winner-take-all affair.

An Indian sole Birmingham had boy, winner of "New York" in the opening 60-minute match. Anything is liable to happen when these meet as they are both rough.

The Lakewood Heights arena is located at the junction of Jonesboro road and Lakewood avenue. It is a closed arena.

A Crimson Threat to Georgia

Young Boozer, 163-pound sophomore halfback of the University of Alabama's unbeaten Tide, will be one of the running threats Georgia will face Saturday at Birmingham. Boozer has been good in the Alabama games this year and is getting better as the season wears on. Which you would expect of a capable sophomore. He is very fast. Young Boozer is only one of a galaxy of good backs Georgia must stop.

Carl Hubbell Is Still Best, Says 'Big Poison'

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 24.—(AP)—Here are some opinions of Paul Warner, the National league's 1934 home run champion.

"Carl Hubbell is still the National league's best pitcher," says 'Big Poison' of Pittsburgh's Wannier.

Georgia Must Match Alabama's Air Game

Bulldogs Can Keep Tide Stemmed by Stopping Passes; Power Not Enough.

By Ralph McGill.

Alabama must remain an odds-on favorite to win from Georgia Saturday afternoon at Birmingham because, until someone comes along with adverse proofs, the Crimson Tide elements seem to be the best team in the south.

It has something which no Alabama team has had since Wallace Wade left there—and that is a passing game which is a passing game. This is no reflection on Frank Thomas, who succeeded Wallace Wade. He turned out great teams without a passer. One either has players who can pass or one doesn't. Frank Thomas didn't.

That is, he didn't have them until this fall. But this season, with all his power and speed, the Alabama instructor has Dixie Howell, and Joe Riley a sophomore back, who can also throw that football.

The Tide backs have not had to pass often. But in the Tennessee game they tossed an even dozen passes and completed seven of them. That is an average for you.

A pass game means more than just the throwing. One must have receivers who do not perspire butter at the finger tips and let all the passes snap from their hands.

IT LOOKS GOOD!

Alabama seems to have the correct combination.

Georgia's passing game, the new one which bloomed against Tulane, getting 99 yards and a touchdown on two passes, looked awfully good there. The pass attack was born of desperation, executed in madness and panic, with the result of utter exaltation. It was inspired with a substitute quarterback conceiving it, a sophomore back throwing the ball and a substitute end catching the ball.

Georgia may succeed in keeping the Crimson Tide checked with passes and kicks. It will require expert passing and kicking to match the Tide's force.

The time has gone when any team can win with mere power over a team anywhere near its equal in ability. There must be a lot of kicking and some passes mixed with the running to really advance the ball.

MUST MIX GAME.

The defense closes in against running. The passes open it up. The running game then has a better chance to gain ground. But when the defense closes against it, there must be a widening of the defensive forces to halt it.

And so the smart quarterback tries to keep the opposing team off balance with a mixture of passes, runs and kicks.

The Georgia-Alabama game, which begins with the L. S. U.-Vanderbilt game as the two most important of the day, involving as they do three undefeated teams, is expected to pull a crowd of some 20,000 into the stands.

When the two teams met in 1930—Alabama won, 13 to 6—they were some 30,000 people in the stands. All the money had not been pulled from the boom trees then.

WILD PASSING.

Marist again drove to Russell's 3-yard line and was again held for downs and then resorted to a wild passing game in a desperate effort to score.

YALE AND ARMY TO PACK BOWL NEXT SATURDAY

Crowd of 70,000 Expected To See Big Game.

By Alan J. Gould.

Associated Press Sports Writer.

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Chiefly because of old Eli's startling improvement under a new coaching regime since the outset of the campaign, this week's Yale-Army game promises to draw the biggest crowd of the eastern football season so far, develop a sensational aerial race for touchdowns and recapture its reputation for leaving the customers somewhat pop-eyed with excitement.

Not since 1931 has the famous Yale bowl been filled anywhere near its capacity of around 55,000, have it been given the Cadets' enthusiasm resembling an old-time scrap in keeping with the best traditions of this rivalry. Close to 70,000 spectators may flock back to New Haven this Saturday to see what Ducky Pond's boys in blue, featuring an air-minded backfield, can do about avenging the decisive defeat administered by Army's in 1932 and 1933.

FINE RESULTS.

Since 1921, when the game was installed as an annual fixture, Yale and Army have usually collided with edifying results. Inferior Eli elevens developed a habit of rising to unexpected heights in the sight of West Point's gold-helmeted boys.

Occasionally the Cadets had a field day, such as when they registered their 33-0 rout of 1926, and when Red Cagle ran wild in 1928 for an 18-4 Army triumph. The following year, however, little Albie Booth entered the picture with Yale trailing Captain Cagle's 10-0 and demoralized the soldiers with three touchdowndashed.

Booth was hurt on his first try and lagged from the field on a stretcher in 1930, but Army's favored team was held to a 7-7 tie nevertheless. The 1931 game was marked by the tragic accident to Dick Sheridan, Army end, who was carried off with a broken neck and died a few days later. Following Dick Parker's dazzling 88-yard run for a touchdown that tied the score and the deadlock was not broken afterward.

Young Alf Anderson Made Good at Once

Son of Oglethorpe Coach, Sent In as Passer, Almost Scored on Tulane.

By Jimmy Jones.

Two years ago, the spring of 1932 to be exact, the writer was hobnobbing with Frank Anderson, the veteran registrar and baseball coach at Oglethorpe University, about athletes in general and his own sons in particular.

At the time, Frank Sr. had just experienced something of a paternal glow in seeing Frank Anderson Jr., one of his three sons to enter the portals of Oglethorpe, close out a very distinguished college career in football and baseball. An older son, Marion, had finished two or three years before and likewise distinguished himself in both football and baseball.

There was still another Anderson—Eddie Anderson—attending Oglethorpe and he, too, was a candidate for all the teams.

For goodness sake, Frank, how many sons have you?" the writer queried after he had called off their names and achievements.

There came another glow of pride from Frank Anderson, face bronzed by many years of teaching young men to play baseball out in the broiling sun.

WHAT ANOTHER!

"The best athlete in the Anderson family is only 16 years old and still in high school," he confided.

He was referring to the fourth of his athletic sons, Alf Anderson, who, at the time, was starring on the football, basketball and baseball teams at Decatur High school.

Albie, also, will attend Oglethorpe University this fall, as will Eddie Anderson—Eddie Anderson—attending Oglethorpe and he, too, was a candidate for all the teams.

For goodness sake, Frank, how many sons have you?" the writer queried after he had called off their names and achievements.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—(P)—Senator Byrd, democrat, Virginia, was the first member of that body to comply with the law requiring filing of campaign expense accounts from 10 to 15 days before general elections. He listed disbursements totaling $2,629, reporting he had received no contributions.

Distelhurst Youth Is Found in Florida

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Oct. 24.—Alfred Distelhurst Jr., 18, of Nashville, missing for a year or more, was found here today at a transient camp by department of justice agents. Young Distelhurst had been in Florida working at various transient camps for a year, R. A. Alt, head of the justice agents in this state, said.

The youth, Alt said, professed he knew nothing of the disappearance of his 5-year-old sister, Dorothy, in Nashville several weeks ago. The young man was given first information about the little girl's disappearance by the federal agents, Alt said.

A widespread search for the child has been under way since her parents reported her failure to return home from school. State police believed to be bloodied, were found on rocks near a railroad crossing in the vicinity of the Distelhurst home but no other clues were unearthed.

Requisition Papers For Richetti Issued

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Oct. 24.—(P)—Governor Guy B. Park today issued requisition papers for the return from Ohio to Columbia, Mo., of Adam Richetti, for trial on charges of murdering two officers June 14, 1933.

W. H. Sapp, prosecuting attorney of Boone county, planned to proceed to Ohio with Major L. M. Means of the state highway patrol.

Richetti, of Centralia, Illinois, Sweden, Spain, and Switzerland are the countries with which he predicted the opening of negotiations within a few days.

Welles explained that the administration's policy was being carried out under the so-called trade agreement act which gives the president authority to enter into trade agreements with foreign countries without the necessity of congressional approval.

"World trade," Wells points out, "has dropped in volume to 70 per cent of the 1929 level; in value to 30 per cent of the 1929 figures." The United States has been the only nation to have escaped unscathed. Its foreign trade dropped from about $9,500,000,000 in 1929 to approximately two billion dollars in 1933."

TRADE TREATY PLANS REVEALED BY WELLESNegotiations Soon To Be Opened With 12 More Nations.

BOSTON, Oct. 24.—(P)—Summer Welles, assistant secretary of state and former envoy to Cuba, outlined today the administration's trade agreements program with foreign countries in an address delivered at the 19th annual meeting of the associated industries.

After briefly describing the benefits which resulted from the trade agreement with Cuba, in force for less than two months, Welles said that negotiations would be undertaken with 12 other countries.
